Wicked Bears Will Sell Power, Unlimited, Perhaps

Two Words Defined Good Pay, No Drink

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THE New York stock exchange said to brokers:

"You must stop wicked bear drives and short-selling that demoralize values and destroy public confidence."

In response to this command wicked bears proceeded to sell short and attack prices more vigorously than ever.

Bears ask the stock exchange governors Mrs. Ruth McCormick's question addressed to Senator Nye, "What are you going to do about it?"

Vicious short selling, intended to decrease values, should be stopped. But HOW?

Raw materials interest buyers when prices drop far enough. Ten cent copper, cheapest in 54 years, brought sales of 175,000,000 pounds last week. England buying a great deal.

Steel men find customers showing interest in "future deliveries," a good sign. They "sink bottom prices have been reached and with public spirit follow President Hoover's advice and will not attempt any reduction in wages.

As we worry about business, wondering what will end the depression, we may be surprised by the breaking out of a few wars. They would soon put up prices of raw materials and stimulate business, if we had brains enough to keep out of them.

Experiments in Cuba, by Georges Claude, French scientist, may mean more to the world than all the wars, and most of the inventions, since Napoleon died.

Taking advantage of difference in temperature between surface and deep water in the Gulf, Prof. Claude has succeeded in supplying power to light 40 500-watt electric lamps.

This means actually utilizing the power of the sun. When that is finally accomplished, the human race will possess power unlimited, and will do whatever it can imagine.

Georges Claude's invention might do as much for the harassed, war-worn world of 1930 as the invention of steam did for the world after the battle of Waterloo.

As Napoleon's candle flickered out, Europe's nations were horribly in debt and conditions seemed hopeless.

Then came the invention of steam, stimulating industry, supplying transportation, giving work to millions. The population and the wealth of Great Britain increased as they had never increased before.

England's debts, left over from Napoleonic wars, with England financing other countries, as she did recently in Europe, seemed hopelessly overwhelming. But with steam that great debt became a trifle.

We need some invention, some man of genius to do for the world now what the invention of steam did for our ancestors of more than a hundred years ago.

In South Carolina yesterday President Hoover described the difference between our system of government among workers. He said:

"In the American system, through free and universal education, we train the people to strive to give them an equal start; our government is the umpire of its fairness. The winner is he who shows the most conscientious training, the greatest ability, the strongest character.

"Socialism or its violent brother, Bolshevism, would compel all the runners to end the race equally; it would pull the swiftest to the speed of the most backward. Anarchy would provide neither training nor umpire. Despotism or class government picks those who run and also those who win."

When Henry Ford said he must close his factories if prohibition came to an end, he was asked how he could run factories in England and other countries with no prohibition.

Today Mr. Ford announces that workers in his enormous British factory at Dagenham will not be allowed to drink "even a glass of beer at luncheon."

British reporters who asked how Mr. Ford proposed to keep Britons that "never, never shall be slaves" from having their beer, he replied, "we shall attend to it in our own way," and would give no other answer.

The British will not take kindly to any effort to force upon them, in their own land, a prohibition that has not yet been forced upon Americans, at home.

Discussing the serious American crime wave, do not confine observations or thoughts to the sawed-off shotgun operators and rum runners.

Detroit Gets Next Legion Convention

SEVEN BABIES TAKEN FROM FARM

LEGION ASKS REDS IN U.S. BE CURBED

Heeds Call to Save the Nation From Communism and From Lawlessness

Detroit was awarded the 1931 convention of the American Legion by vote of the delegates today. The vote was 658 to 370 for Los Angeles.

President William K. Green of the American Federation of Labor told Legionnaires that his organization and theirs shared a common purpose in combating "Reds" who would tear down our national institutions. "These two organizations will serve as a great line of defense as long as our flag floats," he said. "We shall not fear those destructive elements who would substitute here some visionary, impractical form of government for the government of our fathers."

The clarion call to protect America went out to the American Legion today in annual convention at Boston Arena, addressed by military, civic and labor leaders.

Warnings of communism, lawlessness, internal and external enemies and disturbers of government were sounded with appeals to the membership for its power to combat.

Admiral William S. Benson, U. S. N., retired; Gen. Henri Gouraud, French army leader, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Brig.-Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of veterans' affairs; Hanford MacNider, U. S. Minister to Canada were some that warned the veterans of conditions that require the Legion aid to combat.

REDS DENOUNCED

They were told:

1. Pernicious minorities have wrought ruinous changes in our government.

2. Legionnaires must study and eradicate the causes of crime and vindicate the laws.

3. The danger of Communism is imminent in this country.

The convention adopted:

1. A resolution urging registration of aliens.

2. A plea to Congress to end all Communistic activities through legislation.

3.—A resolution to urge all veterans to apply for all benefits due.

One of the bigger problems that faced the delegates was the selection of the city for next year's conventions. Four cities have made spirited contest for the honor, with Detroit very evident with its number of workers.

BENSON FIRST SPEAKER

Among hundreds of others, the resolution by the Department of New York for the repeal of the 18th Amendment, was expected to consume much of the time, with opponents fighting it on the grounds the question is political.

JUDGE DEVLIN IN HOSPITAL

Judge James H. Devlin of Municipal court is recovering at Palmer Memorial hospital, Roxbury, it was learned today, from an operation performed a week ago.

At his Brighton home and at the hospital he was said to be well on the road to recovery, but would not leave the hospital for at least another week.

Judge Devlin was appointed to the municipal bench four years ago after having served as assistant attorney general for the state and secretary to Police Commissioners Edwin U. Curtis and Stephen O'Meara. He was serving in the secretarial capacity at the time of the police strike in 1919.

STATE TAKES 7 INFANTS FROM 'BABY FARM'

Owner of the Westwood Place Vanishes as a Warrant Is Issued; Two Infants Sought

Seven infants alleged to have been in various stages of malnutrition were removed by state authorities from a Westwood "baby farm" a week ago, it was learned today.

The alleged proprietress of the farm, Mrs. Rena Golden, disappeared the day the children were taken from her and has not since been found. A warrant for her arrest was sworn out by agents of the child guardianship division of the department of public welfare.

Authorities have located two other children while Mrs. Golden left in the care of neighbors when she moved to Westwood from Dedham on Sept. 29 and are seeking the whereabouts of two more said to have been in her care.

ONE BABY ILL

One of the latter the agents left at the "farm" when they removed the seven because, alone of the eight found there, it appeared to be in good condition. The other, according to reports of neighbors to the police, was taken from the "farm" a few hours before the State agents arrived.

Of the seven removed from the "farm," which is in Lake Shore drive, Westwood, one weighed only five pounds and was in such con-

Wild Bill Hallahan Sent to the Showers After Two Innings; Johnson Is Also K. O.'d

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 8—The Philadelphia Athletics evidently intended to make quick work of the Cardinals and to finish up the World Series without further delay, for they had a 6-to-0 lead at the end of fifth inning in sixth game today. Simmons and Dykes aided greatly in the assault on the Red Birds with home runs.

The fans clamored still more loudly as Earnshaw whizzed two more stinging strikes past Douthit to fan him on three pitched balls. Adams rolled weakly to Foxx, who jumped on the first bounce, and Earnshaw mystified George Watkins for his second strikeout.

The Athletics dropped up to the

STATE TAKES 7 INFANTS FROM 'BABY FARM;' TWO DISAPPEAR

Although she had moved in only two days before, Mrs. Gouzen moved out of the Lake Shore drive house a few hours after the Misses Roberts and Hilton, city, state agents, had been there during her absence and taken all but one of the eight children found in the care of a girl.

She had previously lived in Bridge st., Dedham, for more than a year.

On September 29 she asked Mrs. C. A. Powers of Millicent ave., Dedham, and Mrs. Elizabeth O'Brien of the same address each to care for baby for a few hours while she moved. Each took a child and Mrs. Golden never returned for them. then the two women informed the police

DOCTOR CALLED IN.

The child left with Mrs. Powers, about seven months of age and called Louise Burke, was in such poor physical condition that Mrs Powers, out of pity for it, called Dr. A. L. Worthington, Dedham health officer, to attend it.

Dr. Worthington, about a week before, had been called to attend a baby at the Golden house and had found it in a state of malnutrition. He left word there if the child did not improve he was to be notified, but had received no further word.

The physician, putting two and two together from his discoveries, notified Mrs. Winnifred Kenerson, director of the state child guardianship division, and the agents were sent to the newly located "baby farm" in Westwood.

WOMAN DISAPPEARS

The girl found caring for the eight babies there told the agents that Mrs. Golden was absent but somewhere nearby. After taking seven of the babies, all under two years, they attempted to find Mrs. Golden in the neighborhood.

Walking near the house they found a woman who said she was Mrs. Golden's sister. With her they left word for Mrs. Golden to report to the State House.

A furniture van backed up to the house a few hours later and the furniture was removed. The state agents swore out a warrant charging Mrs. Golden with violation of the guardianship law. Under the license she possessed she was lawfully allowed to board only two children.

FIVE BABIES IDENTIFIED.

Five of the babies taken from the farm have been identified by parents. That at the hospital is known only as "Baby Golden." That with Mrs. O'Brien is called "Baby Renny." Mrs. O'Brien expected its mother to call for it today.

Both Dedham and Westwood police joined in the investigation begun by the state. Chief Peter Driscoll of Westwood found the Lake Shore drive "farm" vacated but later was informed that Mrs. Golden had been seen there last Monday.

Dr. Worthington said today that several weeks ago he had been called to the Golden place in Bridge st., Dedham, to attend a baby that was suffering from lack of nurishment. He prescribed for it and left instructions that he was to be called the next day if it had not improved, he said. He did not hear from Mrs. Golden.

STILL HAS ONE BABY

So far as the authorities can determine, Mrs. Golden still has in her possession the eighth baby found at the farm a week ago.

She is said to be living with her husband and two boys.

Lake Shore drive neighbors told police that Mr. and Mrs. Golden left with one baby on Oct. 1, before the agents arrived, and later returned without it. Officials think she may have placed that child in the care of somebody else or she did in the case of the two children "farmed out" with Mrs. Powers and Mrs. O'Brien.

"The baby brought to me was so weak it could not hold up its head, and it was emaciated," Mrs. Fowers said.

IS MOTHER OF FIVE

"I took it through sheer pity and even called Dr. Worthington to see it as I was afraid it might die on my hands. But it is better now, and I am being paid by the State to care for it until its parentage can be learned. I have five children of my own."

Chief Driscoll at first denied any knowledge of Mrs. Golden but later admitted he was searching for her.

"She has flown from here so fast as I have been able to discover," he said. "I was only trying to cover up the matter because of instructions of the welfare society agents. You have the story as far as I know it."

Former neighbors of Mrs. Golden in Dedham told police they understood she built the house in Westwood.

Lubitsch and Rival Meet With Glare After Fight

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 8 (AP)—A fisticuffs exhibition between Ernest Lubitsch, prominent motion picture director, and Hans Kraly, film writer, which enlivened a ball given by Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford here last Saturday night, apparently had reached the simmering stage today.

Lubitsch and Kraly met at the opera here last night and acquaintances said many glares were exchanged.

Mrs. Helene Lubitsch, divorced wife of the director, accompanied Kraly to the opera. It was Mrs. Lubitsch who ended the Saturday encounter between her former husband and Kraly with a resounding open-handed blow to Lubitsch's face. She accused the director of jealousy.

Lubitsch said he struck Kraly because the writer and Mrs. Lubitsch taunted him and ridiculed his dancing, Kraly said:

"I don't know what it is all about."

He denied he had broken up Lubitsch's home, as the director asserted.

Commenting on reports she and Kraly would be married some time in the future, Mrs. Lubitsch said she was not sure.

Mrs. Lubitsch's divorce was in the form of an interlocutory decree, granted two months ago. Kraly said he expected any time to receive word from Berlin that his wife has obtained a divorce.

Lubitsch asserted Mrs. Lubitsch had told him she and Kraly intended to be married.

"I shall send them a marvelous wedding present," the director declared. "I hope they are married 100 years. He deserves it."

They were led by Mark Whittier and went to the hotel from Communist headquarters on Harrison ave., according to the police. They were stopped by Goulston when they could not produce credentials which the A. F. of L. delegates carried.

Hit-and-Run Matrimony Leads to Court

Husband Stands All Save 'You Low Bus Driver!'

Trenton, Oct. 8—There are some things a man won't stand from any woman, no, not even if he is married to her. Thomas J. Hanley, after three years of what may be called hit-and-run matrimony, has asked a divorce. Here are some of the things he said his wife, Grace, did to him:

Kicked him out of bed.
Ordered him from the house.
Made him sleep on the floor.

Accused him of infidelity.
Spied on him constantly.
Threatened to poison him.
Tore a wrist watch from his arm.
Insulted him publicly.

Now these nine offenses irked and irritated the husband, he said, but he remained patient and dutiful until one day Mrs. Hanley asserted with emphasis:

"You're a common bus driver!"

That expression, legalistically termed an act of cruelty, was the last straw and Hanley, who is rated a bus driver of uncommon ability on the Bayonne line, hied himself to court.

BRAZIL REBELS DRIVEN FROM PERNAMBUCO

Recapture of City After 24-Hour Battle Announced by Government

Buenos Aires, Oct. 8 (AP)—Announcement of the recapture of the northern city of Pernambuco by federal forces after a 24-hour battle was made in a government communique issued at Porto Alegre today.

The federal government, striking back at the gathering revolution, has developed two strong offensives designed to crush the rebellion in the south and to engage the insurgent armies far from Rio de Janeiro, the capital, and Sao Paulo, second city of the republic.

The first offensive was an advance into the rebel state of Minas Geraes, principal source of Rio de Janerio's food and milk supplies. Troops advanced along the Central Railway and reoccupied several towns, among them Palmyra.

The offensive farther south has for its object closing of the rebel ports and source of supply and keeping the insurgents so occupied in their own states that attack on Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro would be impossible.

Revolutionary sources claim that Bahia, third city of the republic, and the great state of that name, lying north of Rio de Janeiro, has joined the rebellion.

Stabbed at Party

'SHANTY' HOGAN STABBED

New York, Oct. 8 (INS)—Francis "Shanty" Hogan of Somerville, Mass., Giants' catcher, was subdued early today by a Negro elevator operator who used a bat and a knife on Hogan when Hogan objected to the Negro taking a drink at a party Hogan was attending.

But the Negro also was subdued fleeing the scene when he ran against an amateur boxer, Luke Salahando.

Hogan's knife wounds in shoulder, arm and side were not serious, it was said today. The Negro was booked for felonious assault.

Paris, Oct. 8 (AP)—Hugo C. Wallace, former American Ambassador at Paris, who has been seriously ill here, was a passenger today aboard a special train for Havre, where he embarked on the liner France for America.

"I've been very ill," he said, "but I am better now and my physicians have given me permission to return home."

BRITAIN BEGINS MOURNING FOR R-101 VICTIMS

Public Memorial Is to Precede Burial Friday; Many Pay Homage

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—All England entered today upon a period of mourning which will have its official close when the bodies of the R-101 victims are taken to Cardington for burial Friday after a public memorial at St. Paul's Cathedral.

All day guards paced silently to and fro before the rows of coffins in the mortuary under the shadow of Westminster Abbey. Flags but a brief moment before dawn when the dead of the wrecked dirigible were brought home from the scene of their fate.

MANY PAY HOMAGE

Through the chill hours of a stormy morning the victims were taken from the destroyer Tempest at Dover, entrained for London and were borne from Victoria station to their temporary resting place.

Many persons came during the day to view the memorable sight, while more passed by before the mortuary raised their hats in homage.

Shortly before noon formalities connected with the disaster were resumed when Coroner Ingleby Oddie, of Westminster, began his inquest.

PRELIMINARY PROCEEDINGS

The proceedings were purely preliminary, no identification evidence being taken. The coroner said he would adjourn the inquiry until completion of the report of a tribunal of investigation which is to be put into action soon by the air ministry.

The provisional adjournment was until Nov. 18 with the understanding if the work of the statutory tribunal was not then completed there would be a still further delay.

It was understood the members of the Government's Court of Inquiry would not be named until a new secretary for air had been appointed to replace Lord Thomson, who died in the destruction of the R-101 in France early Sunday. He was considered probable for the appointment of a new air minister would be made in a few days.

5 PLEAD GUILTY IN CANDY CASE

Five of the 18 men on trial in the Page & Shaw case in Superior Court at East Cambridge changed their pleas to guilty today, admitting conspiracy to steal.

One of them, Benjamin Finn, also pleaded guilty to larceny of stock and checks of a total value of $3067.32 from Rev. J. Louis M. Lavesque of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Marlboro.

Following the pleas, the trial was postponed until next Tuesday by Judge Harold Williams because of the death last night of the mother of Otis Emerson Lunham, president of Page & Shaw, Inc., one of the defendants.

Besides Finn, those who pleaded guilty to conspiracy to steal were Jacob Blanton, Michael Louis B. Natelson and David Sager. Taking of testimony was to have begun today, the jury having been selected Monday.

Father Lavesque was one of the losers in the alleged fraudulent marketing of Page & Shaw stock, his losses being said to reach $15,000.

Benjamin Finn pleaded guilty to larceny of 53 shares of Massachusetts Utilities Associates stock from him, the value being $1,187.32, together with a check for $1400 and another for $500.

The remaining defendants, who are represented by a brilliant array of counsel, are Otis E. Dunham, Raymond Ballard, former vice-president; Isaac Hart and Joseph Polisy, brokers; and three salesmen: Percy Powers, Samuel Finn, Harry Sternberg, Harry Jaspon, Harry Anti, James O'Malley, Samuel Schwab, Lewis Blankenberg and Philip Polisy.

Former Alice Kenney Is Married Again

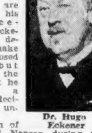
Marlow, Buckinghamshire, Eng., Oct. 8—The former Alice Kenny, daughter of William F. Kenny, wealthy New York contractor and friend of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, was on a continental honeymoon tour today with her second husband, Capt. Percy Lawson - Johnston, an officer in the Scots Guards reserve. The nuptials took place here last Saturday, it was learned today.

Alice Kenny

Miss Kenny was married in 1923 at St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, to Count Francis Byron Kuhn de Prorok, archaeologist. The couple lived in Paris and later went to Carthage. The count obtained a divorce in Paris in 1927 on grounds of desertion.

Eckener Denies He Plans North Pole Trip

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Oct. 8—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the giant dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, announced yesterday that reports published in German papers that he had decided to lead a Zeppelin expedition to the North Pole are untrue. In his announcement Eckener did not deny he would not make the proposed journey, but stated that the reports that he had made a definite decision were untrue.



Dr. Hugo Eckener

Besides Finn, those who pleaded guilty to conspiracy to steal were Jacob Blanton, Michael Louis B. Natelson and David Sager. Taking of testimony was to have begun today, the jury having been selected Monday.

British Aviatrix Lost in India

Karachi, India, Oct. 8—Attempts to locate Mrs. Victor Bruce, noted British sportswoman and aviatrix, by radio and other means along the gulf coast since Sunday at noon had failed, it was learned today, as several serial and land search parties started to hunt for the missing woman.

Mrs. Bruce left England several weeks ago on an attempted flight to Australia. It is feared by aviation authorities and meteorologists here that the aviatrix encountered severe storms and was forced down. Planes and fast ships were scouring the coastal routes.

SAYS DRY LAW CANNOT BE ENFORCED

Failure of Prohibition Convinces Him Real Temperance Is the Solution of Problem

Chicago, Oct. 8 (INS)—Patrick Cardinal Hayes, head of the Catholic archdiocese of New York, last night repeated his belief that the Eighteenth Amendment cannot be enforced and expressed a desire to see the state option plan for liquor control adopted.

The Cardinal stopped here between trains while on his way to California. Earlier in the day he participated in dedication ceremonies of a $400,000 law building at Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind.

Discussing the prohibition problem, Cardinal Hayes said:

"I feel now, as I did when prohibition went into effect, that it cannot be enforced. Temperance, one of man's finest virtues, is the only solution to the liquor problem. Self-control, and not prohibition, will bring temperance.

"State control of the liquor problem is, I believe, the course we should follow. Then those who believe drinking is a sin could have complete prohibition while their neighbors would not be imposed upon.

"I see this problem as one of character and the ability of man to control himself. Temperance ranks in importance with the virtues of justice, fortitude nad prudence. On these swing all morality."

His eminence expressed appreciation of the support from newspapers and public organizations to his effort to clean up the New York stage, adding that the literature of the day also has some "foul smelling spots."

The dedication ceremonies at Notre Dame were presided over by Cardinal Hayes. Other notables participating include Gilbert K. Chesterton, British essayist; the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the university, and A. B. Erskine, president of the board of lay trustees.

Four Months' Poker Game With Byrd at Pole Described

New York, Oct. 8.(AP)—What is believed to be the longest poker game on record—it lasted four months—was described in a radio talk over WABC last night by Russell Owen, correspondent for the New York Times with the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

With money of no value, the stakes were cigarettes, he said, or when some particularly unpleasant task was to be done a game of freeze-out was played to see who would do it. He said a general conspiracy always existed to make sure Rear Admiral Byrd could not lose. The men thought it not right for the commander to do tasks they tried to evade.

'JOE' DONAHUE NOT WED

New York, Oct. 8—It was two other people.

So explained Joseph Donahue and Margaret Breen today. Joseph is the brother of Jack Donahue, star of "Sons o' Guns," who died last Sunday after a spectacular career on the stage. Miss Breen, a lovely blonde, was leading woman in "Simple Simon," with Ed Wynn.

Both were indignant over published reports that Joseph Donahue had secretly married a mysterious "Margaret James" only a few hours after his brother's tragic death. Joseph explained that his marriage to Miss Breen had been postponed for a year due to the death of Jack.

And both were attempting to learn something about the "Joseph Donahue" who married "Margaret James" in Connecticut, as reported.

COURT BATTLE FOR CROMWELL CHILD OPENS

Possibility of Decree Without Hearing Looms as Counsel and Judge Confer

Providence, R. I., Oct. 8 (AP)—A formidable array of distinguished counsel, including James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, was in Superior Court here today for a legal battle to determine the custody of an eight-year-old child.

The child is Christine Cromwell, daughter of James H. R. Cromwell, New York broker, and his divorced wife, Mrs. Delphine Dodge (Cromwell) Baker, and granddaughter of Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, wife of a senior partner of the J. P. Morgan Company.

The hearing was scheduled before Justice Edward W. Blodgett. Under a separation agreement entered into between Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell April 24, 1928, and which later was incorporated in the divorce decree awarded in Nevada, Mrs. Cromwell was to have custody of the child for nine months and Mr. Cromwell was to have the child three months, from June 15 to Sept. 15, each year.

Last August Mr. Cromwell notified his divorced wife, who was then in Berkeley, Cal., that he would not surrender the child on Sept. 15, and informed her that he was not satisfied with the care that the child had received while in the mother's custody. The mother immediately instituted habeas corpus proceedings to regain custody of the child.

The possibility that there would be no court hearing, but merely the formal entry of a decree loomed after counsel on both sides in the case had been in conference in the lawyer's room at the courthouse for nearly an hour. Indications were that a stipulation agreement would be drawn in an endeavor to bring about an adjustment without a court hearing.

Deserter Confesses Machine Gun Theft

Chicago, Oct. 8 (AP)—Corporal Tom McAdrian, a deserter from Fort Sheridan, has confessed, police said today, to theft of an army machine gun and 18,000 rounds of ammunition, and their sale to Cicero gangsters. Gun and ammunition were worth $1,500.

G. O. P. Can Ride Elephant, Camel Balks

They Can't Compete With a Circus Either

Reno, Oct. 8—In competition with a circus in a small town, a political meeting is about as attractive as an epidemic of measles, but it is possible to mix the two and have a big time.

This was demonstrated at Yerington, Nev., by the Republican candidates now on a vote-seeking tour of Nevada. They landed in the town just as two elephants and one camel and the steam calliope were occupying the center of the main street.

The speechmaking was called off. With United States Senator Tasker L. Oddie in the lead, the candidates headed for the circus and were immediately given star spots in the performance. The Senator and Gov. P. B. Baldar were honored with positions on top of the elephants' heads and Lieut.-Gov. Morley Griswold was given a camel to ride in the grand opening parade.

The senator and the governor managed to stick on top of the swaying heads of the elephants, but the lieutenant-governor came to grief directly in front of the high-priced seats. The camel slipped suddenly and Griswold lost his grip on the front hump. Over he went into the tanbark.

BOY IS VICTIM OF BOOZE

Mystery today surrounds the story told Brighton police by John Watson, 10, son of Thomas J. Watson of 4 Harvard st., Waltham.

The boy was found shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in an intoxicated condition wandering along Surrey st., Brighton.

His father was notified. At the police station the boy said he met a man on Russell st. between Francis and Main sts., Waltham, and the man placed him in an automobile and took him to Brighton. The last thing he remembers is that the man gave him a drink of something from a bottle.

'Poor Board' for Worcester Relief Almost Broke

Worcester, Oct. 8—The Board of Public Welfare here today found its coffers in a state similar to Mother Hubbard's cupboard.

During September, a total of $57,503 was spent for emergency cases and relieving families of unemployed, leaving the "Poor Board" with less than $26,333 of an appropriation to run for the rest of the fiscal year.

Unless drastic measures are taken immediately the Board faces the unpleasant prospect of going broke. It is estimated by city officials that close to $100,000 will be needed to make up the deficit.

Today members of the board will meet with Mayor Michael O'Hara to discuss plans for relieving the situation. The financial straits into which the Home Farm for the poor and aged has fallen, also will be discussed, and the measures necessary for taking care of the city's dependents.

This is the first time in the history of Worcester, officials of the city said, in which the board of public welfare found itself in a condition similar to its beneficiaries.

FISHING RIVALS RESUME AFTER SEVEN YEARS

Victorious Craft Must Win Two Races Over 37-Mile Route Off Gloucester

By TOM HORGAN

Gloucester, Oct. 8 (AP)—The men who brave the fury of the North Atlantic to reap the harvest of the deep will make sport of their hazardous calling tomorrow when the Bluenose, out of Lunenburg, N. S., queen of the Canadian fishing fleet, and the schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, pride of the Gloucester fleet, meet off here to sail for the Sir Thomas Lipton international challenge trophy.

The cup will go to the schooner first to win two races over a triangular course of approximately 37 nautical miles, and with it the greater part of a large purse.

AFTER SEVEN YEARS

The series will mark a resumption of the international fishermen's contests after a lapse of seven years. During that period Gloucester schooners have raced among themselves, and the fishermen of the maritime provinces have done the same thing.

When the series off Gloucester has been sailed, the two schooners are scheduled to leave for Halifax, N. S., and off that port to race for the old Dennis Cup, emblematic of the sailing championship of the North Atlantic.

The cup was last won by Bluenose, but owing to a dispute in a later contest the trophy's status has remained obscure during the past seven years.

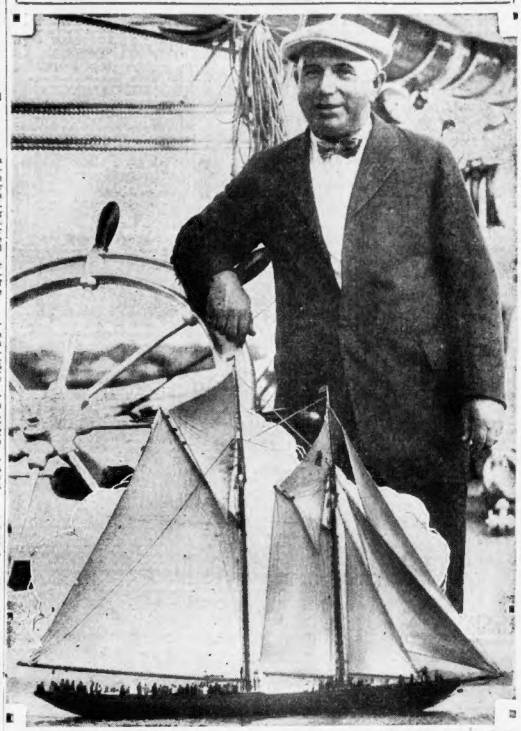
BLUENOSE GROWING OLD

Capt. Angus Walters, who has sailed Bluenose to more than one victory, is again at her wheel, and Capt. Ben Pine, veteran of many sailing contests, will skipper Gloucester's hope in both series.

Bluenose is considerably larger than the Thebaud and carries an appreciably larger spread of sail, but she is now more than nine years old, and rightly or wrongly, it has been said she no longer possesses the speed of her youth.

However that may be, a good breeze of wind and a rough sea should see the Thebaud at a distinct disadvantage. Both skippers are praying for wind—real wind, not the gentle summer zephyrs in which the America's cup races were sailed off Newport this summer.

'Bring On the Bluenose—We're Ready'



THE GREAT FISHERMAN'S RACE of 1930 is already attracting much attention. Plenty of work has been done at Gloucester in preparing the Gertrude L. Thebaud, Massachusetts' fishermen's hope. Here we have Capt. Ben Pine, who will be given the chance to beat the Canadian Bluenose for the cup donated by Sir Thomas Lipton.

HAVANA TENSE AFTER RIOTS

Havana, Oct. 8 (US)—A mutiny occurred among federal troops garrisoned in the Cabanas fortress in Havana on Sunday night, the government disclosed today, when it was announced that Col. Agusdo, one of the commanding officers of the fortress, has left Havana aboard the steamship Morro Castle for a "vacation."

This was but one of several disquieting reports that served to envelop the capital in a tense atmosphere last night following new riots, with three persons known to be dead and at least 24 seriously wounded.

A second alarming report stated that open revolt has flared in the interior of the island republic. This, however, was denied.

2 BIG PARADES FOR HEARST IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Oct. 8—Mayor Thompson promised today that the patriotic demonstration to be held Thursday—Chicago Day—will be the greatest spectacle seen here since the Chicago fire itself.

He said:

"October 9, 1871, saw Chicago aflame and in ruins. October 9, 1930, will see Chicago aflame with the spirit of patriotism and a determination to build for prosperity."

William Randolph Hearst, who was tendered enthusiastic receptions in New York and Boston on his return from Europe, will be the guest of honor in Thursday's celebration here.

The demonstration here, as it was in the East, will be a tribute to the publisher's fearlessness in exposing the secret agreement between France and England, an act which caused France to ask him to leave the country when he was on his recent visit there.

There will be two parades. One was described by the mayor as the most colorful ever formed. The other, he said, will be the longest ever organized.

Soldier field will be the scene of an event rivaling in grandeur and impressiveness the others that have made the stadium famous from coast to coast.

And at night three large banquets will be held simultaneously in as many hotels. Each will be addressed by a speaker of national prominence.

WOMAN SLAYING JAILS YOUTH

Glen Mills, Pa., Oct. 8 (AP)—Alexander McClay Williams, 18-year-old negro inmate of the Glen Mills school for boys, was held prisoner today as the alleged confessed slayer of Mrs. Vida Robare, 40, cook at the institution, which houses between 600 and 700 boys.

Night Club Rum Raid Ousts 50 in Evening Dress

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Maison Nebeha, a night club just off Park ave. in East Sixteenth st. where the doorman wears evening clothes and carries a silver headed cane, was raided by police early today.

About 50 patrons, all in evening attire, were ordered from the place and four employes were arrested on charges of possessing liquor. Nine bottles of liquid were seized.

The club, located in a quiet residential section, was decorated with expensive modernistic furnishings.

The raid was made as a result of complaints from residents of the neighborhood.

The prisoners described themselves as Joseph Bullo, 38, manager; John Belmonte, 35, part owner; Jose Alvarez, 37, a waiter, and Arthur Strand, 28, doorman.

An additional charge of operating a club without a license was lodged against Bullo.

HISTORIANS OF LEGION MEET IN WELLESLEY

The men who know the American Legion at home and abroad, the historians of the various posts throughout the United States were the guests of Col. Eben Putnam of Wellesley Hills, national historian, at an informal breakfast at the University Club this morning.

Included as guests were a score or more of war and after the war chaplains, in Boston to attend the convention. It was the first gathering at which more than six of the "fighting parsons" of the A. E. F. have been present since the war.

The breakfast was entirely informal, but was made the occasion for the presentation of three prizes, offered more than a year ago for the best post history written by a post historian.

These prizes were awarded on the basis of arrangement, interest and style. The judges were Maj. Claude M. Fuess of Massachusetts, William C. Mundt, Wisconsin, and William R. Ruth, New Jersey.

The winners announced this morning were Clark Tucker, Kenbur-hel Post, Ohio; second, Jacob C. Schaffer, Edward H. Ackerman Post 397, Pennsylvania; third, J. A. Nye, Leo P. McNamara Post 61, Iowa.

Five other histories submitted received honorable mention.

Among the post historians present were: Edward Blake, West Virginia; Bert Lawton, Oklahoma; A. J. Dougherty, Montana; George M. Davis, New York; Ralph R. Smith, Massachusetts; Milton J. Myers, Illinois; D. A. F. Branton, Minnesota; Ned Engler, Kansas; John T. Taylor, Connecticut; Leroy C. Flint, Rhode Island; M. J. Collison, Maryland.

Junior League Starts New Season With Exhibition

THE FORMAL OPENING of the Junior League year takes place today with an exhibition and tea at the new headquarters, 264 Marlborough st. A large attendance is expected as this promises to be the busiest year in the organization's history and all of the members are planning to do their best to help the new building project, which was a large undertaking.

THE EXHIBITION INCLUDES pieces of sculpture by Miss Katherine Lane and paintings by Miss Amelia Peabody, two most prominent Junior League members. Miss Peabody will have two groups, Going to Meet, a masculine and a feminine figure on horseback, and Moments From the Fountain of Youth, a bear cub and a lion cub. Miss Lane's group consists of Greyhound, Clydesdale Stallion, This Little Pig and Ayrshire Bull.

THE ANNUAL BOARD MEETING takes place today and the provisional members selected from this year's debutante group probably will be published on Saturday. Committees are already chosen and working, among them the board of managers, which includes Mrs. George Hemis, city editor of the Junior League Magazine; Ruth Gibson, news sheet; Elizabeth Searle, library; Mrs. Carlton Richmond, future policy, and arts and interests; Mrs. Nelson Bigelow, arts and interests; Mrs. Henry Jackson, Jr., players; Mrs. John Thayer, Jr., Glee Club; Mrs. Malcolm Bradley, music; Mrs. J. Timothy Walker, red, stocking subscriptions; and Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Jr., garden clubs. The house committee includes Mrs. Valentine Hollingsworth, Mrs. Lawrence Morgan and Miss Virginia Gardiner.

Miss Helen Cabot to Make Debut at Tea October 22

MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL CABOT will present their daughter, Miss Helen Cabot, at a dance at the Hotel Somerset on Wednesday, October 22. A dinner for the ushers will precede the dance. Miss Cabot is a graduate of Miss Winsor's School.

MISS NANCY SPALDING, daughter of Mrs. Willard L. Spalding of Swampscott, will be presented at a tea dance to take place on Saturday, December 6, at the Neighborhood Club, Phillips Beach.

LA ARGENTINA, WORLD famous dancer, will appear in Symphony Hall, Tuesday evening, October 21, and a large block of tickets for the first performance will aid the South Boston Neighborhood House. Miss Lucy Aspinwall, Mr. and Mrs. Chilton R. Cabot, Mrs. Elleston James, Miss Dorothy Bartol, Miss Grace G. Moseley, Mrs. Ross Whistler, Mrs. Edward H. Warren, Miss Marian L. Homans, Mrs. Richard K. Baker and Mrs. Roger Ernst are on the patroness list.

SPONSORS FOR THE BENEFIT entertainment for the Elizabeth Peabody House on November 4 at Symphony Hall are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Judge Frederick P. Cabot, Mrs. Henderson Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen V. R. Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell, Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson. Also Mr. and Mrs. George C. Lee, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Q. A. Shaw Mc-Kean, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Spring, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Steinert, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Trafford and Dr. and Mrs. Wyman Whittemore.

New U. S. Minister to Canada Theatre Guest of the Erwins

SOCIETY NIGHT AT THE Plymouth Theater was not as largely attended as the premiere, due no doubt to the American Legion parade, and the audience chose wisely to attend in street attire. Of course there were many who braved the confusion of parking and a long walk maybe to the playhouse and came in evening dress, which enhanced their attractiveness.

MRS. CHARLES E. COTTING was quite beautiful in black velvet with a red and a white gardenia on the shoulder; Capt. and Mrs. R. Gilpin Ervin's box party which included Col. Charles Hanford MacNider, recently elected minister to Canada, and Mrs. MacNider was apparently enjoying the performance very much; Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Jr., was girlish in simple afternoon frock of blue. The house was comfortably filled, but many familiar faces were absent which we hope will not be the case at the next performance in the series which will be Madge Kennady in "Michael and Mary."

MRS. CHARLES L. TALBOT of Brookline is chairman of the committee arranging a rummage sale to be held on Thursday, October 23, in the First United Presbyterian Church in Boston for the benefit of the Boston Children's Friend Society. Every year the ways and means committee plans one of these sales and it solicits any article which the owner no longer needs nor wants.

THE NORFOLK HUNT MEET has been postponed from October 11 to October 25 on account of the hard and dangerous going.

Girls' Home Opened

When the protective department of the Florence Crittenton League opens its new quarters at 13 Custer st., Jamaica Plain, today, it will provide 12 big sunny rooms for girls entrusted to the league.

Girls from 14 to 25 years old will be sent there from one week to three months. Instead of being sent to jail, court witnesses, runaway girls, girls awaiting trial and girls charged with stubbornness, will be sent to the house, which has been named Welcome Home.

They will be given a physical examination at the Boston dispensary, a psychometric examination at the psychopathic hospital, and will be taught cooking, housework, sewing and home nursing. Those under 16 are sent to the Judge Baker foundation for a thorough case study. When possible, after their stay at Welcome Home they are sent to the Bethesda Society for training.

Clubwoman Given New Office

Mrs. Lawrence C. Putnam of Peabody Is New Ninth District Chairman

By NANCY BREWSTER

With the appearance of the manual of the State Federation of Women's Clubs comes the announcement that Mrs. Lawrence C. Putnam of Peabody is the new ninth district director. She succeeds Mrs. Norman Jeffrey, who resigned last May following the State meeting at Swampscott.

Twenty-five clubs come under her jurisdiction and for the next three years the Peabody director will carry the Federation policy into clubs in Beverly, Cliftondale, Danvers, Gloucester, Ipswich, Lynn, Lynnfield Centre, Manchester, Marblehead, Hanat, North Saugus, Peabody, Rockport, Salem, Saugus and Swampscott.

Mrs. Putnam reported on the cause and cure of war conference at the mid-winter meeting of the Federation last January and her brilliance in repeating the salient points of the Washington conference immediately made her figure among the club women in session.

The ninth district is one of the strongest in the Federation. Mrs. Putnam has a fine background on which to spread progress and development. The club women of her district have already pledged their devotion, loyalty and sincerity.

Salem Woman's Club to Have Presidents' Day Program Oct. 15

As one of the principal guests of the 'presidents' day' program to be conducted by the Salem Woman's Club in Peabody Hall, Oct. 15, Mrs. Frank P. Bennett, Jr., will officially represent the State Federation of Women's Clubs as its first vice-president. Other guests are to be Mrs. Lawrence C. Putnam, ninth district director; Mrs. Susan L. Ferguson, honorary president, Ninth District Presidents' Club and Mrs. Joseph Lelyveld, state chairman of junior membership.

The story of cotton will be told by Miss Barbara Poor and a musical program presented by Lucy Adams Dennett, Mildred Auld and Eleanor F. McIntire. The Junior Club will present "To Be Dealt With Accordingly." The executive board and members of the hospitality committee are to be in charge of the meeting.

Executive Board of Local Jewish Group Entertained at Tea

The executive board of the Boston Section, National Council of Jewish Women, was entertained at a tea at the University Club by the president, Mrs. Therese Cohen Whitman.

Among those who attended the tea were Mrs. Israel Bernstein of Portland, Me., president of the New England Regional Conference of the National Council of Jewish Women; past presidents of the Boston Section, including Mrs. Rosa Kornfield, Mrs. Milton T. Rosenau, Mrs. Hyman Freiman and Mrs. Charles Wyzansky.

Public Welfare to Occupy Attention of State Clubwomen

To stress public welfare is the desire of the new president of the State Federation, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, according to a personal message from her to the club-women of Brockton.

"It is my desire to stress public welfare this year. It will not be necessary for you to think twice about my idea, because you are marching in the front line now," her message reads in the official organ of the Brockton Woman's Club, "Club News."

"Women all over the country are asking questions which indicate that they are ready to conduct a search for better homes, better communities and a better world. This is surely a worthy goal. Dr. John Dewey, the noted educator, reminds us that to measure progress we must set goals; results are not measured by the distance we find ourselves from the goal, but rather by your distance from the starting point," Mrs. Schrader concluded.

Opening Meeting for Women Musicians Is Scheduled Oct. 24

Mrs. Frederick Lamb, the newly elected president of the Women Musicians' Association, will preside at the opening meeting of the season Friday, Oct. 24 at 8 p. m. at the Legion House, 1 Arlington st.

At the reception following the meeting, Mrs. Lamb will be assisted by Helen Gallagher, vice-president; Mrs. Mildred Merrill, recording secretary; Mrs. Mildred Mahon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harriet Morse Lovell, treasurer; and Mrs. Paul Revere Knight, chairman of publicity.

LEGION TAKES UP BUSINESS AT SESSION

and proponents urging on the ground that the organization should take a stand.

These questions were expected to be decided late today.

Admiral Benson was the first speaker to greet the delegates, standing for thunderous applause after his introduction by Commander C. L. Bodenhamer. He warned of the minority groups, saying:

"The American Legion should defeat these insidious and selfish minorities within our borders no less decisively than they defeated the enemy they met on European battlefields.

"Millions of Americans need to learn, and their public servants need to exemplify, what our colonial ancestors knew so well, namely, that government is a means of protecting the lives, the liberty and the rights of its citizenship, not a device for making them rich."

The admiral was constantly cheered as he waxed enthusiastic in his denunciation of "the selfish."

"If your liberties are in danger now, I know you will sacrifice something less precious than life to defend and guarantee them.

"I am sure that you will despise personal gain, partisan advantage, the interests of class or section, if these are to be achieved only at the cost of principle or of peril to the ideals of America," he said.

SCORES LAWLESSNESS

"Our wealth, our power, our educational and cultural resources grow greater year by year, but our lawlessness increases apace," he said.

"What will the American Legion do now; what will it do hereafter to study and eradicate the causes of crime and to vindicate the laws?" he asked.

"Certainly your organization, which vanquished one of the greatest powers of all times, is neither indifferent nor fearful in the face of the horde of criminals who menace life and property here at home."

Gen. Gouraud was given a tremendous ovation and looked with pleasure on the fluttering hats and waving banners of the boys he led "over there" just before he started in low pitched voice to tell them of his feelings after the span of 12 years.

CITES AMERICAN HEROISM

He brought the greetings of Marshal Petain, M. Tardieu, high commissioner of France during the war and now prime minister.

"And had it been God's will, I should have brought to you the same sentiments from your great friend, Marshal Foch," he said.

He briefly reviewed the association of America and France during the war and admonished the Legionnaires that the demobilization was "merely a change of detail," simply passing from the army of soldiers to the army of workers.

He recalled the number of Americans that entered the war before their country and cited the heroism of Americans of the Lafayette Escadrille.

"Was it not by generosity, by the sentiment of an ideal, that young men came from the beginning of war to fight and die for France and placed in the scales of Destiny the weight of your arms to make that side tip toward the sacred cause of Independence and Right," he said.

At the end of his talk, Gen. Gouraud presented the national body with a loving cup as a tribute from France to the American Legion.

After the speechmaking the convention settled down to the business of legislation.

'OLD IRONSIDES' SAILS AGAIN

Carrying a list of notable passengers including national, State and Legion officials "Old Ironsides" today moved down through a lane of honor comprised of vessels of the fighting fleet in the greatest tribute ever paid to the historic old ship.

The line of ships extended a distance of two miles from the Navy Yard to the South Boston drydock and the Constitution—allher spars now in place—was towed through the lane and back.

A few minutes after 3 the airplanes started circling over the ship and dropping flowers on her.

Thousands of people lined the shore and wharves as the ship went by. "Old Ironsides," like the modern battlecraft that paid her honor, was decked in color. The lane of honor included the cruisers Detroit, Marblehead, Milwaukee and Raleigh, with Rear Admiral O. G. Murfin in command of the flag ship Detroit.

Noone to Stick in 2 Election Races

Concord, N. H., Oct. 8—Albert Wellington Noone of Peterboro, 84, yesterday challenged the Democratic state machine and announced his determination to campaign for the offices of Governor and United States senator. He was nominated to both by the Democratic voters.

Several members of the Democratic state committee have sought to persuade the wealthy retired manufacturer to withdraw from at least one of the contests.

FACULTY GETS PAY RAISE AT HARVARD

Salary increases for every member of the faculty of arts and sciences at Harvard University were announced last night.

This is the first general salary increase for the Harvard faculty since 1920, when a change was made "in view of the rise in the cost of living." The reason for the increase, it was said last night, is that the Harvard officials consider living conditions higher than those of a decade ago.

The Harvard Corporation, which, with President A. Lawrence Lowell, determines the salary of the Harvard teaching staff, has announced a regular wage scale for the members of the departments of arts and sciences. It was also stated that the increase was made possible by adjustments worked out under Harvard's budget system.

The salary of a full-fledged professor is set at $8000 a year for a minimum and $12,000 a year, maximum. The minimum wage for associate professors is set at $6000 and maximum at $7000. Assistant professors will get a minimum of $4000 and a maximum of $5500. For instructors the maximum wage is $3000 a year.

The raises represent an increase of $300,000 in the Harvard payroll.

U. S. SHOWS GAIN IN PARALYSIS

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—Increased infantile paralysis cases were reported today to the public health service. Cases over the country now total 648, as against the 661 reported in the same week of 1927. Last year the highest number was 150.

During 1928 and 1929 the disease started its upward curve in July, reached its peak in September and had subsided by the end of October.

This year, however, the disease began mounting in June and has continued on a sharp upward climb.

Where Massachusetts had 115 cases in the corresponding week of 1927, it has but 48 now. New York now has 50 cases.

W. Newton Board Get Widening Protests

Opposition to the proposed elimination of a curve on Commonwealth ave., opposite Prince st., West Newton, by widening the thoroughfare is expressed in two communications received by the Newton board of aldermen.

One letter, sent by the Beacon Oil Co., states the project would ruin a gasoline station operated by the company at that point. The other was from Catherine L. Mehigan, 1298 Commonwealth ave., owner of land that may be taken in the widening project.

Gen. Edwards Will Attend Exercises

Formal opening by Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards and his distinguished Irish guest, Maj.-Gen. Sir William B. Hickie, of the new public headquarters of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform will take place this morning at 10 o clock.

The headquarters are on the Arlington st. side of the Hotel Statler and will be open daily from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. until after November 4. Chairmen from the 70 cities and towns in the Massachusetts branch of the organization will attend the opening and afterward a luncheon in the hotel. The headquarters will be in charge of Mrs. Ethel T. Corner, chairman of the committee.

'Land of Tailed Man' to Be Penetrated by Highway

Seward, Alaska, Oct. 8 (AP)—Alaska's legendary "land of the tailed man" will be penetrated by the Gulkana-Nabesna highway, now under construction.

The road plan was designed to furnish an eventual link to the highway that will extend from Los Angeles far into Northern Alaska.

Donald MacDonald, sponsor of the project, said he met a native who told him how his tribesmen had found a race of men with tails, who lived in dens and used no fire.

Hawks Flies to N. Y. in Less Than Hour

New York, Oct. 8 (US)—Flashing along the 190 miles from Boston to New York at a speed at times better than three and a half miles a minute, Captain Frank M. Hawks, America's greatest aviator, set a new unofficial mark of 53 minutes for the flight yesterday.

Unidentified Woman Dies as She Misses Big Parade

The marchers passed on their ten-hour trek. The drum-beats rolled over the city and faintly reached into a room on Ash st., South End, to give an aged woman the only taste of the spectacle she had paid so much to see.

She was paying with her life, in a strange bed, in a strange house, and when the bugles ceased, her tired heart ceased, too.

Nobody knows who she is. Her body, with the white hair of her seventy years, lies today at City Hospital morgue, unclaimed.

Dr. William H. Watters, assistant medical examiner, appeals to the public to help identify her.

Yesterday she started out to see the parade, perhaps to see a son whom a dozen years ago she had seen march off to fight for his country. She walked and fatigue overtook her.

She stopped at 34 Ash st., where years ago she had a woman friend named O'Brien. She thought she might still find her friend there, and after resting she would go on.

But the family did not know her friend and their visitor became fainter as time passed. Her hosts put her to bed over her protests she must go on to see the big parade.

Hours passed and she lay listening to the drums, and in the evening when they looked she was dead.

She had told them she was 70 years old, that her first name was Margaret and that she had relatives in West Roxbury. Nothing more.

She was five feet seven inches, weighed about 120 pounds and wore a black dress, white stockings and black shoes.

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS—BROUGHT TO YOUR HOME IN A BOTTLE

DOWN in the Cumberland foothills in Indiana lies a pleasant valley that the Indians and the early settlers knew as the home of health.

Here natural health-giving waters bubble up from unknown depths in the midst of a pleasant glade. Here the pioneers came, and here they built the first French Lick Springs Hotel. A rude tavern it was in those early days, yet it was the rendezvous of thousands who came to drink and to carry away the natural mineral waters of the springs that surrounded it.

Today a huge 800-room fireproof hotel stands on the site of that first inn—mecca of health-seekers from every corner of the world—a concrete testimonial to the efficacy of Pluto Water. By train and motor car they come, jaded, tired, surfeited. Here in this pleasant valley they drink those same waters—they play—they leave with the glow of new-found health in their faces.

The fame of French Lick Springs has spread far and wide—it has become even better known than those ancient baths and spas of Europe . . . Wiesbaden, Aix, Carlsbad, Vichy.

Not everyone, however, can find the time, nor perhaps the means, to visit French Lick Springs and enjoy the health benefits that these marvelous natural mineral waters contain.

But thanks to a nation-wide distribution of bottled Pluto Water from French Lick Springs, you can enjoy these same health benefits without going farther than your own corner drugstore!

Pluto Water contains all the essential mineral properties of the famous natural springs at French Lick. It is in effect French Lick Springs in a bottle.

For more than fifty years doctors have prescribed Pluto Water. Not only for constipation, but in the treatment of other, more serious, diseases that have their beginning in the absorption of poisonous waste matters from the intestines.

Both European and American doctors are outspoken in their praise of a saline water laxative. Arthur F. Hurtz, M.D., F.R.C.T., Guy's Hospital, London, says:

"A saline physic does not disturb the digestion like many vegetable purgatives, such as cascara sagrada and castor oil." A prominent American doctor says, "A saline mineral water laxative, such as Pluto Water, dissolves accumulated wastes and gently but surely flushes them out of the system. In my practice I prescribe Pluto Water in preference to irritating types of laxatives."

Thousands of other doctors agree with these authorities about the superiority of a saline water laxative. They all say the same thing: "Salines produce prompt elimination without griping"; "Salines are harmless"; "Saline laxatives stimulate natural bowel action"; "Salines are the best laxatives that can be used".

What better proof that Pluto Water—America's saline water—is the laxative for you?

Go to your druggist today for your supply of Pluto Water!

Keep a bottle or two on the bathroom shelf for emergencies—make Pluto your constant traveling companion—take it each morning upon arising, diluted in plain water, for bad breath, stomach disorders, irregularity. Two sizes—20c and 45c, at all drugstores and fountains.

GYRO AIRPLANE THRILLS CROWD AT AIR SHOW

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The airplane that goes straight up came straight down at Boston airport today for the fifth day of the Legion air show, the first appearance of a Pitcairn autogyro plane in the city.

Crowds of early arrivals crowded around the plane and watched demonstrations of its perpendicular rise with the "windmill" on top. It was flown from Philadelphia by John G. Ray and stopped at Framingham for the night.

The big feature for today was the stirring aerial parade over the city with every available plane in line. More than 100 were housed there during the night.

The program opened at 11:30 with a crowded lineup of events scheduled until darkness.

TODAY'S PROGRAM

4:00—Exhibition flying.

5:00—Special feature—to be announced.

5:30—Parachute drop.

GREETING MADE HER HOARSE

Replying to the greetings of thousands of her admirers along the parade route cost Mrs. Donald Macrae, national president of the Legion Auxiliary, the temporary loss of her voice yesterday. She has recovered nicely, however.

She became so hoarse from talking that she was forced to retire from the procession at 3 o'clock and go to bed with an ice pack on her throat.

Out of a class of 239, Massachusetts has sent the largest detachment, 146. New York has contributed the second largest number.

Twenty-six states in all are represented. Public schools prepared most of the girls, only 79 hailing from private schools. And there was only one who boasted a private tutor.

Auxiliary Nominates 2 for President

Mrs. Wilma Hoyal of Arizona and Mrs. Ruth McCurry Brown of Arkansas were nominated for the national presidency of the American Legion Auxiliary today in the convention in Symphony Hall.

Immediately afterward the two fair candidates stepped to the platform and made their bows to the 1400 delegates, who shook the hall with enthusiastic applause.

Standing on either side of Mrs. Donald Macrae, the nominees responded to the ovation by kissing Mrs. Macrae almost simultaneously and waving to the audience.

The balloting takes place tomorrow and it is expected to be the closest contest that has ever taken place in the auxiliary.

BOTH WOMEN LAUDED

In a glowing tribute to the service record, character and ability of Mrs. Hoyal, past national chairman of national defense and now national child welfare chairman, the Arizona delegation presented her name to the packed convention hall.

California seconded the nomination on behalf of the entire western division, composed of 10 states and Alaska and Hawaii, in a second tribute to Mrs. Hoyal's efficiency and fitness for the coveted position.

Mrs. Brown's name was presented by the North Carolina delegation chairman, who lauded her brilliant intellect, her service which began with organizing her own unit in Little Rock, Ark., and her rare good humor and ability for the pool.

Ohio seconded Mrs. Brown's nomination and New York added a third voice in behalf of the nomination of Mrs. Hoyal.

Five national vice-presidents, chosen in caucus and presented to the convention today, will be ratified when the balloting opens tomorrow.

These are Mrs. Hazel Dudgeon of Welch, W. Va., for the central division; Mrs. Ralph S. Heaton of Closter, N. J., for the eastern division; Mrs. Rose Gilmore, Nashville, Tenn., for the southern division; Mrs. E. E. Laubaugh, Boise, Idaho, for the western division, and Mrs. A. C. Carlson of Wilmar, Minn., for the northwestern division.

RESOLUTION IS TABLED.

Mrs. Irene MacIntyre Walbridge, a Salvation Army lassie who served doughnuts to the boys during the war, is up for re-election as American vice-president of the Fidac Auxiliary.

Despite weariness from having been up late last night at the brilliant "states dinner," and worn by the hectic day at the parade, the 1400 delegates were all in their places when the convention was called to order shortly after 8 a. m.

The resolution presented by the poppy committee, providing that all poppies be labelled "veteran-made," caused wide discussion on the floor when presented by the chairman, Mrs. A. E. Amundsen.

Whether or not the widow of a disabled veteran, left with two or three children, and the disabled veterans in tubercular hospitals who are barred from making poppies for sale in some states, would be deprived of income from this source precipitated a discussion that caused the tabling of the resolution.

It was brought out that one-fourth of the disabled men in tubercular hospitals have no compensation and that the making of poppies is practically their only income.

Texas reported that these patients make all their poppies. The poppies were then sterilized and have been pronounced perfectly safe for public sale after this is done. Washington also follows this plan, its delegation said, having ordered 175,000 poppies already for 1931.

TROPHIES ARE OFFERED.

In California the physicians do not permit tubercular disabled men to work on poppies, a delegate reported, because it is too often a detriment to the men's progress to do so.

The offering of an annual trophy to the department doing the most outstanding American work was authorized.

Two new national trophies to be awarded to departments first making ten per cent membership increase each year were also authorized.

The appearance of Carroll Swan, president of the convention corporation, with greetings to the auxiliary was the signal for an enthusiastic reception.

"There has been an awful war for the past three days," Swan said in a very hoarse voice, "You can't blame me for not being able to speak after all we have been through."

He praised the women for their understanding and co-operation in the Legion program and hearing thanked the state and national officers, after he presented Mrs. Macrae with a solid gold official emblem of the American Legion, remarking that he presented "gold to the president and you ladies of pure gold."

Veterans Greet Old Commander

Col. Samuel P. Hall, formerly commander of Headquarters Co., 103d Field Artillery, R. I. N. G., was the guest last night at the reunion and banquet of veterans of that outfit at the Brunswick.

The meeting was arranged by Thomas J. Keenan, George H. Pretat and Eugene H. Blair, Providence; Francis Tellow, Lynn; Fred Mycroft, Salem, and Arthur Muirhead, Medford.

Rev. Tupper Cleared

Westfield, Oct. 8.—Rev. Miles T. Tupper, 56, of Bankhamsted, Ct., was freed in court of a charge of reckless driving after his machine had hit a man on the highway.

LYNN MAN HELD IN AUTO CHARGE

Marshall T. Rivers of 1 Acorn st., Lynn, who was given a lift home after the Legion parade, was arrested at Lynn last night after a chase of nearly a mile by a squad of police. He was charged with drunkenness, operating under the influence, taking a motor vehicle without authority, and failing to make himself known after causing damage.

Police alleged Rivers took the car of William F. Murphy of 40 Hood st., who had given him a ride from 253 Boston st., Boston, to Lynn, where it had been parked, drove through the city zigzagging, and crashed the car of Charles Gouche of 502 Essex st., and then, leaving his car, raced through side streets on foot, until captured by Officer Carmello Polo.

Picturesque Hats for All Day

It doesn't matter whether a hat is small or larger, there's a softness in its lines that's new. A portrait touch . . . instead of the hard architectural lines hats had a short while ago.

In all the hats you're going to see this Fashion Week, look for this picture quality. In a brim's graceful sweep or diagonal tilt. A draping's intricate folds. In the poise of a bow or a feather.

From the simplest beret to the formal afternoon hat, you'll recognize this touch. And find these new hats much more becoming.

There's a Hat for Your Type

A hat? Several of them, rather. Because this year there's no set pattern you must follow.

True—perhaps you always do find the brimmed hat more becoming. But there are so many kinds of brimmed hats. Or—if the brimless hat suits you best—there are just as many kinds of brimless ones.

When you go looking for brimless hats, be prepared for many surprises. You've been thinking of brims as turning down, haven't you? So they do. They also turn up—and out—and often both down and up.

You can see how picturesque this is in the large hat in the center. Up in front, up on one side, down on the other. The hat with the flare-away brim. Surprisingly easy to wear, too.

Felt or velvet hat with flare-away brim.

The ways that brims are pleated, folded or slashed are legion. The kinds of pleats, shirrings and tucks in crowns are innumerable. And as for trimmings . . . they start at simple ribbons and bows and use everything from feathers and fur to jeweled clips!

* * *

Double Brims

Examine some of the new brims. The — they're double. Two thicknesses of felt. Look under brims. You'll find bandeaux, pleats and bows tucked neatly there.

Leather bits and [illegible] en circle sports hats. The crown is slashed and a gay feather stuck through—Tyrolian fashion.

However simple the trim or manipulation of materials, somehow it has a way of making these new hats look important—the right kinds of hats for an important year like 1930.

* * *

Watch for the Evening Cap

Here and there this winter you'll catch the sparkle of sequins or the shimmer of satin on close-capped coiffures. The evening cap is being seen more and more. Especially on smart young things who wear it well back on the head to show their soft curls.

* * *

You Wear Your Hat Like This

Not down over the eyes. The day is past when speeding taxis could swoop down on you unaware! Now—whether your hat is brimmed or brimless—you can see where you are going.

The eyes are exposed. Not only the eyes, but the forehead. Hats are made to be worn this way.

The crown, which may seem too shallow when you first look at it, is purposely so. It's made to end well back on the head—and to fit snugly.

Put your hat on so the back fits the back of the neck. Then the brim—or front edge—takes care of itself. It comes where it is intended to come—and lets just enough of the hair show for that little smart touch. The illustrations show how!

Paris!

The Paris matron has always had a fond spot in her heart for the tricorne. Le Monnier has made a different one this season, tipped at a dashing angle, with one point well above one ear, one directly over the opposite eye, and the third well down on the neckline.

* * *

What with fur jackets, fur capes, muffs, fur trimmings on dresses and fur bandings on hats, it's no surprise to find Paris wearing the beret of fur. Sometimes they match a fur jacket. Sometimes they are worn with cloth costumes. One of the most interesting of the recent models is the beret made of sectional pieces of fur, alternating in black and white.

* * *

Turquoise is a striking color note on some of the black hats that are dotting the city. And Gaby Mono has designed an [illegible] turquoise bonnet, with regular baby bonnet ruffles on the crown.

Copyright, 1930, by Amos Parrish.

New Cloche

Notices the cloche just above. The cloche is really a turned down brim hat. But see how even in this, the brim has a lifted look in front and a flare at the sides. Quite different from the old hide-the-eyes bell shape, isn't it?

Draped Beret

Now see what's happened to the beret this season. (At the upper right.) Would you ever believe that that softly draped bit of felt was the descendant of the simple flannel tam the Basque peasants wear?

Just try one of them, even if you've never thought you could wear one. With that new draped effect (which can be on either side or at the back) they're going to look very different on you.

Another brimless hat that's gone through a pleasant change is the turban. It's still snug fitting—outlining the shape of the head. But all manner of things have been done to its sides or back.

They've been pulled down or twisted into a drape, like the one at the right. Or a bow has been tucked in by the ear or the back of the neck. Their lines have been softened—like all the season's hats.

Tricornes

And here's good news for lots of wearers. The tricorne and bicorne are back in fashion. Such a variety of them, too. Some even and regular in line . . . others decidedly irregular, with one corner lower or higher than the others.

The little Revolutionary tricorne sketched is the natural companion of coats or dresses with a Directoire line. And if you like to wear nose veils—here's your chance!

* * *

A Single Tuck Can Make a Hat

There is much owing to Jim Maloney besides the thanks of Boston fandom. Boxing was before the bar, last night. If the encounter had borne any aspect of fake or prearrangement, even if Maloney, awed by the tremendous bulk and strength of the Italian Man Mountain, had showed the white feather and fought strictly a defensive fight, boxing not only would have suffered here, but seriously would have been affected in other sections of the country where the game seems trembling on the brink of collapse.

George Underwood

The fair name of sport here in Boston and throughout the old Bay State was endangered. Because of the suspicious circumstances attending many of the matches Carnera engaged in, all sorts of stories hinting of fakes and frameups were circulated throughout the sporting world before last night's contest. Maloney figuratively was "on the spot," last night. He was in a position where his every move might be misconstrued. The least false move on Maloney's part and the thousands of visitors here for the Legion parade would have left the city criticising Boston and sneering and jeering at the way sporting affairs are conducted in the old Bay State.

Not only did the black hand of suspicion point at last night's match but in addition to the stories that circulated throughout the sporting world having it that Maloney was going to take a dive there were other stories in which Maloney's courage as well as his honesty were impugned. The scandal mongers declared that the former Boston fisherman was "yellow," that he would tremble in his brogans at the first sight of the towering Italian giant and he would hoist the white flag at the first opportunity.

How baseless did Maloney prove all these reports.

FLAMING COURAGE

No battle ever was waged more honestly, cleanly and no fighter ever fought with more flaming courage than did the gallant Boston Irishman, last night.

Myles, the Slasher, who so gallantly faced the hated Sassenach at the Bridge of Finea Cuchulain, Finn MacCumhail, Laerty of the Victories, all of the legendary Irish heroes from whose blood Maloney sprang, were they standing back in the shadows watching the young Celt face the savage rushes of the giant Italian, all could proudly say:

"Well done, Shamus, Our Brother. You are a credit to your race and your blood."

And we plain Boston fans echo the sentiment. Jimmy Maloney "did us proud." Jim Maloney fought the good fight, gave the boxing game the biggest boost it has had in many a day and preserved the fair name of sport in the old Bay State.

Here's to Jim Maloney. "Down the hatch." Even if we do have to drink his health in Jimmy, my boy, you and a yard wide!

The Broadway boys are back in Philadelphia again, their number somewhat reduced, and a few of them are still sticking to the Cardinals. You see, a World Series with most professional bettors is a game and game proposition few bet on. The final result, although one Indianapolis man told me out in St. Louis that a combination of which he was a member had $20,000 on the series.

Judging from the money that showed from the different towns, I would say that Indianapolis must be the most prosperous. The delegates from that city had plenty. However, the St. Louis pros were also in funds, and the Philadelphians still have all that Broadway money, unless they have spent it on mink coats for the wife against the coming of winter.

HACK WILSON IS NIL, 'BEST'

Philadelphia, Oct. 8 (US)—Hack Wilson, center fielder of the Chicago Cubs, was the most valuable player to his club during the past season, according to a decision today by a committee of baseball writers representing all of the National League cities.

Frank Frisch, second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, received the second highest number of votes, while Bill Terry, first baseman of the Giants, took third place.

Each of the writers cast his vote for the 10 National League players he considered best, with 10 points for first, nine for second, etc.

Only one writer picked Wilson for first place on the most valuable list, but five of the writers picked him for second place. Wilson had 70 points out of a possible 100.

Frisch received four votes for first place and a total of 64 points, while Terry was first choice of three of the writers and had a total of 58 points.

Other National League players who received votes, with their total points were: Herman, Brooklyn, 35; Klein, Philadelphia, 33; Cuyler, Chicago, 27; Wright, Brooklyn, 27; Lindstrom, New York, 17; P. Waner, Pittsburgh, 14; English, Chicago, 13; Lopez, Brooklyn, 12; Hartnett, Chicago, 10; Grimes, St. Louis, 9; Maranville, Boston, 9; Berger, Boston, 8; Jackson, New York, 7; Mancuso, St. Louis, 6; Malone, Chicago, 6; Douthit, St. Louis, 4; Traynor, Pittsburgh, 2; Gelbert, St. Louis, 2; Grantham, Pittsburgh, 2; Kremer, Pittsburgh, 2; Vance, Brooklyn, 1, and Heilmann, Cincinnati, 1.

Green Coach Banks on Medford Boy to Bolster Team

BRANCH WILL PLAY END SATURDAY

By BILL GRIMES

Due to the failure of the Big Green to function against Bates, Head Coach Jack Cannell has made two major changes in his Dartmouth varsity team.

Dartmouth has been experimenting with Wild Bill McCall as a quarterback, but once Jack Cannell had watched Eddie Toothaker under fire, he quickly decided that McCall should go back to half, at which position he played brilliantly last season.

Bill Grimes

After the Bates game, Cannell announced that Forrest Branch, former Medford high and all-scholastic center, had joined the end squad. Branch made his numerals as a guard on the freshman last season but started as a pivot man for the varsity this fall.

He was used at center against Norwich and did a terrible job on his soldier boy opponent. Although the coaches admitted that Branch was destined to be Capt. Hal Andres' first substitute, a week ago, he was shifted so that the Green could have three pairs of guards.

As far as out and out football players are concerned, Dartmouth has few peers of Branch. He is held in the highest esteem by the coaches and it was because of his natural ability that he was selected to be converted rather than either Ping F[illegible]rry or Bill Kimball, the other center candidates.

Cannell Thinks Branch Will Make Good End

Now Branch has been moved out to end. He has been able to master [illegible] is confident that he will be able to adapt himself to end duties within a short time.

Branch is ideally built for an end. He has the height and the weight necessary for success as a flankman. He is fast, hits with terrific force and is a deadly tackler. At Medford high, his down the field play was most spectacular and he should be even more sensational in this line as an end.

Although Dartmouth has a large squad of ends, they evidently are not measuring up to the Cannell standard. Stan Yudicky is a fixture. An unknown at the beginning of last season, Yudicky was ranked with the best in the college game before the close of the year.

He is bigger this fall and just bubbling over with confidence. Mackey and Durgin, two sophomores, are waging battle for the other end, with the former having a slight edge on the Lewiston boy.

The return of Bill McCall to halfback makes possible the 1929 combinations. Shep Wolf and Len Clark first string halfback, with Henry Johnson at full and McCall again teaming up with Arnie Frigard, with Eddie Sutton at fullback, and this condition was brought about by the article of football Eddie Toothaker played last Saturday.

Toothaker One of Shiftiest Players on Squad

Toothaker played his first game for the varsity against Bates and he made good from the start. Toothaker quarterbacked his freshman team two years ago but he was in difficulties with the office last year and ineligible. Toothaker is the shiftiest back on the squad, and is fortified with an abundance of speed, runs his team well and uses good judgment in selecting plays.

Forrie Branch will have his first tryout at end on Saturday against Boston University and as the Terriers have a couple of clever end runners in Phil Hootstein and Emil Ober the ex-Medford star will have an opportunity to display his wares as an end.

Escutcheon Wins Century Handicap

Jamaica, N. Y., Oct. 8 (US)—Escutcheon managed to jog home in the Century Highweight Handicap through the assistance of Jockeys Kurtsinger and Ellis. Kurtsinger rode the winner so he deserves the credit. Ellis sat astride Sonelli and he must get the discredit. The race was decided at the turn into the stretch.

At this turn Sonelli, which was winging in front, much to the discomfiture of the backers of Escutcheon, made a very wide turn. It was so wide one could drive a coach and four through. That was all that Charley Kurtsinger desired. When Charley saw this gaping opening, he drove Escutcheon through and started to hopscotch for the wire. Sonelli was in front but it didn't take Kurtsey long to get on even terms.

BILL McCALL — EDDIE TOOTHAKER — FORREST BRANCH

FORREST BRANCH, former all-scholastic center at Medford high school, is now relied upon by Coach Cannell to strengthen the Green wing position. Branch has also played at tackle, but Cannell thinks he will make a great end. "Wild Bill" McCall has been sent back to his old port of halfback, while Toothaker will call the signals. These changes, Cannell believes, will greatly bolster the Green eleven for the game with B. U. on Saturday.

Pee-Wee Golf Course in Chi Opera House

Chicago (AP)—The historic old Auditorium theater where two generations of opera-goers were entertained is to become an indoor golf course.

In fact, it is to become two courses, with a club house on the stage where Mary Garden, Charles Marshall and Charles Hackett sang themselves to fame.

By BILL CONNELL

Scouting in college football circles for many years has been a regular part of the annual fall sport. It is only in the last few years, however, that systematized scouting has developed to an important degree in schoolboy gridiron ranks.

There have been instances in the past when one school team was supposed to have in its possession the signals of some foe. But fans realized after a while that no quarterback, school or otherwise, would be able to remember two sets of plays and signals.

Bill Connell

The scouting referred to is the legitimate variety used in practically all colleges, by which trained observers can acquire an almost perfect knowledge of a [illegible] by watching that eleven through one or two games.

At the present time many of the larger high schools have regular scouts usually in the persons of the assistant coaches. Several of the big schools have coaching staffs of four or more mentors, any of whom can serve as scouts.

And just as in college circles friends of the head coaches are ever ready to lend their assistance valuable or not gratis for the enjoyment they get out of scouting. There is a certain [illegible] which the most base grid fans get when admitted to the strategy board of some team.

Fans are surprised when teams like Lynn English are held almost even by some supposedly inferior team. Scouting is the answer. The weak groups get a specialized defense [illegible] they know in a general way what to expect from their opponents it is difficult for the [illegible] up much of a [illegible].

Pick out a few of the coming games between the powerful school teams and elevens which do not rate, on paper at least, with their [illegible]. The result will tell the story. [illegible]

O'Kelly-Gagnon to Clash Oct. 21

This heavyweight battle takes the place of the Sammy Fuller-Andy Callahan [illegible] match which was to be staged on that date.

B. C. DRILLS FOR FORDHAM TILT

The Boston College football team begins today their most strenuous week of campaigning in the season. Next Monday the Eagles face one of the greatest football elevens in the country in Maj. Frank Cavanaugh's Fordham Rams.

There are four important backfields at the Heights, each of which is a distinct unit, and is sent into the game as such. They drill as separate units, each being a complete backfield in itself. Thus the quarterbacks regularly drill only with their own particular backfield and have not the experience with the other backs to make themselves perfectly at home.

Joe McKenney begins today to smooth out the defensive work, and will [illegible] on the offensive plays. As a matter of fact, the bag of tricks prepared for the Marines was [illegible] wide open.

OLD GOLD VOTED BEST by World's keenest TASTE TESTERS

Nation's leading Coffee Tasters pick OLD GOLD 2 to 1 in "Ripley Test" of Four Leading Brands

By Robert Ripley, Himself

"Believe it or not . . . these men together earn over $250,000 yearly . . . on their sense of taste!

"They are the world's finest judges of flavor. Big coffee importers and packers risk millions in coffee purchases on their taste-judgment.

"They can detect the minutest difference in flavor or aroma. They know to a T what the American public will like.

"So when I put the four leading cigarette brands up to them, I staged the toughest test a cigarette ever faced.

"They went at it seriously. Sampled each cigarette with names concealed. Once, twice, three times. Rated them on flavor, mellowness, body, aroma, general appeal.

"I was impressed when OLD GOLD won. I was stunned when I looked at the final score.

"Believe it or not, the keenest judges of taste the whole world knows picked OLD GOLD two to one over its nearest rival!"

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

May I plead in your popular paper for the restoration of the whipping post in this State? I believe that it still survives in Delaware, where if one sets fire to a courthouse he may get 60 lashes, or to a church or school 20 lashes.

To publicly whip some offenders would be greater punishment for them than to fine them or put them in the "cooler." Our prisons are getting to be second-class boarding houses. Judges will give one man 60 days for an offense, while another judge with owl-like wisdom gives eight months for the same offense. I believe in whipping offenders, especially those who desecrated those tombstones in the Dorchester cemetery. Bring on your whipping post and put it on Castle Island, South Boston.

Grateful for Jewish Holiday Stand

Editor Boston American:

I am very grateful for your help in bringing about Harvard's recognition of the right of the Jewish students to adhere to their faith by furnishing them with [illegible] in taking their examinations on Yom Kippur. This [illegible] I am sure [illegible] the Harvard [illegible] grace [illegible] acceptance of their willingness to cooperate [illegible] such [illegible] in the future is gratifying.

I believe it would be [illegible] to follow up the good work and suspend the public school classes on the important holidays of the principal religions. The necessary school days could be made up by shortening the other vacations. This I believe would be practical as it would avoid half attended classes on those days.

State University Urged For Free Education

Editor Boston American:

We want a University of Massachusetts. Much more we need it in this state to provide free education for male and female students with books, papers and other materials furnished by the state. All voters will pass on the initiative petition at the state election.

Whatever money spent for free education [illegible] effect afterwards that cannot be seen at the beginning. New York has such a university.

A residence of four years in his state would be the requirement for enrollment. Education for degrees is becoming more than ever expensive in the educational institutions now established here. Make it easy for the coming generation to get their education without so many handicaps as at present.

Spend more on educating the masses instead of spending so much money on entertaining [illegible] This [illegible] now overdone. Let us command more money for this state university.

Railroad Safety Cited As Compared to Autos

Editor Boston American:

I was delighted to see reference in your letter column to a comparison between railroad accidents and auto accidents. Here are some statistics that may add more proof that railroads today are safer than autos.

In 10 years, between 1920 to 1929 [illegible] railroads in the United States, there were 579 passengers killed.

The total number of killed in automobile accidents in 1929 was 31,500, nearly 9000 greater than the total number of railroad passenger casualties in 10 years referred to above.

If this does not make people think, what will?

Writer Likes Every Feature of American

Editor Boston American:

It is with absolute sincerity that I wish to thank you for the pleasure and profit I obtain from your paper, and especially the special writers. From Brisbane on the front page through the sports, business, etc., to the editorial pages with H. G. Wells, O. O. McIntyre and Elsie Robinson. They are all good. Again and again after reading Elsie Robinson's column I have meant to write to you in her praise, in justice to her. I think she's wonderful. I admire her bravery, the way she champions the truth, her poetry is fine, and her love of humanity is deep, and let me add the one who has given her this freedom to be her own self in print, deserves great praise. From this letter you must plainly see I appreciate your paper greatly.

Wellesley Welcome to "Legionnaires" Rapped

Editor Boston American:

The paper made no mistake about the spelling of "Legionnaires" in this way, but out in that intellectual centre Wellesley a banner waves across the center of Washington st. spelling the word "Legonnaires" leaving out the "i." We did not dare question this spelling there but we think it should be corrected if there is no authority for it. Of course I know it is of French origin and the papers are right, among them being the Boston American.

Rain Hunter Thinks "Drys" Run Weather Bureau

Editor Boston American:

Has the weather gone awry? Bring on those showers! They have been ordered for several days. To meet them I have carried a raincoat till I feel that I have been deceived. Now today, Tuesday, we were again informed by the bureau that we may get showers on Wednesday. If we don't get those showers this week, I'll think that the Drys are running the weather.

Ryan Deserves Reward For Work, Says Friend

Editor Boston American:

Well nourished looking politicians are "riding" in on something they never laid a finger to accomplish, while Ryan, a slender, quiet individual who needs no town crier or blare of trumpets, accomplished something through his own initiative. With one stroke of his pen he gets the United States and "English Cities" interlocked for world peace.

Ryan, the "Robin Hood" and "Tercentenary Vagabond," deserves any gift that Boston always gives to her worthy sons.

Baby Dry Law Repeal, And Drunken Autoists

Editor Boston American:

Who killed this innocent [illegible]

The liquor interests want the voters to strangle the Baby Volstead law in this state.

Its repeal would deprive several thousand police officers and 100 or more State Courts of the power to arrest and convict bootleggers and gangsters engaged in the manufacture, transportation of intoxicating liquor.

If the wets succeed in their scuttling [illegible] of state [illegible] lessness and drunken driving [illegible] [illegible] and alarming [illegible]

Should your child be killed by a drunken driver as a result of such repeal, you and every mother's son (and I blush to add every mother's daughter), who voted for this reckless unpatriotic wet nullification program, would be morally guilty of the homicide.

If you want the blood of innocent men, women and children on your hands, vote with the wets for the repeal of the state enforcement law known as the Baby Volstead act on Nov. 4.

Brewers and other [illegible] interests are 100 per cent for repeal.

PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

A new navigation chart of Boston harbor has been issued by Comdr. Robert F. Luce of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Chart No. 246 covers all of the harbor on a detailed scale and includes results of recent surveys made by the State department of public works, the U. S. engineers and other organizations.

Changes along the waterfront harbor highways are shown. The more important changes, shown on this chart for the first time, include surveys in the North ship channel in Town River Bay, the Mystic and Chelsea rivers, South Bay and in various sections of the inner harbor.

Additional changes include those in the Charles river near the North Station development projects, present condition of the Old Colony boulevard, the Boston airport, the Southern artery and the shores of Mystic river.

This chart is being commended in marine circles and is available to the public.

F. C. C. BOWLING

Beginning Thursday night at 6 o'clock at the Faneuil alleys in Dock sq., the harbor bowling activities will be renewed.

This season the bowling will be under the auspices of the Foreign Commerce Club which is donating a silver cup through Capt. W. A. Hindon, a director. It will be known as the Hindon trophy and will go to the team winning each season. John J. White, last season's champion, is secretary of the league.

Goldie Takes Annie From Police Cell

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

"The Edgewater Kid," Polack Gorio's North side gang, of which Annie's man, is murdered. Goldie the Kid was a member, accuses Kinky King, leader of the West side gang. Kinky swore to get the Kid for taking Annie from him. Later Kinky is found murdered, a gold revolver, similar to that possessed by Goldie, beside him. To satisfy the public's demand for action, the police chief arrests Annie. He refuses Goldie's request for her release. In revenge, Goldie's gang throws the theater district into darkness and destroys public property. Goldie starts with his gang to free Annie.

CHAPTER 11

THE POLICE MATRON had just locked the outer barred door behind Crip, an insignificant looking little Negro with a club foot. At night he ran sandwiches and coffee for the prisoners. And night and day he was a stool for the police. The narcotic squad palmed him a ration of confiscated dope at intervals, and the chief of detectives was covering him up for the murder of a black back-room girl that had never been "solved."

Crip had a whining voice, a shrewd eye and an uncanny sense of hearing. Tucked away in his thick-skulled bean was more information than equipped a police chief's secretary. He dressed in a ragged suit and wore a greasy old cap down over his eyes. People took pity on him and ofttimes gave him coins without solicitation.

"Take that black coffee to Polack Annie," ordered the matron.

She turned back to her desk when a terrific blow on the steel door burst it open. The next instant, standing before her was Goldie Gorio—a brilliant, gold-mounted automatic in each hand. Goldie was smiling pleasantly.

"Good evening, Anna," he greeted.

"Good evenin', Goldie," faltered Anna Daley.

Goldie Breaks In

"Get Polack Annie out here and get her quick," spat Goldie through his gold teeth. Then he smiled again.

Polack Annie, whose cell door was open and who had just received the coffee from the mangy Negro, ran out when she heard Goldie's voice.

"Goldie!" she cried.

"Get out of here and into my car in the alley," Goldie ordered with words as staccato as machine-gun fire—and he never took his eyes from the police matron.

Polack Annie ran to the door, where Cranky caught her by the arm. Goldie backed out, the two guns still levelled at the woman. At the door he thrust the automatics into their holsters, and reaching into his pocket drew out a $20 gold piece which he tossed at the toes of the terrified police matron.

"Thanks," he said, and was gone. The police matron first grabbed the coin, then turned and grabbed the telephone. She clicked the hook frantically. There was no life, no response from the switchboard.

"Let the siren loose, Ray," Goldie ordered.

Like the screech of a hundred devil-tortured souls the contraband scream tore the night. The car slid around the corner into the street and North. Zing—blop—came a shot at the South intersection.

Pulled Alarm

As he passed the front of the police building the door belched forth his eight men. Goldie grinned. He turned and looked back and saw confusion down the street. He saw Crip, too, the little negro stool pulling the fire alarm box just in front of the police station. One of Goldie's men, running from the station, sent the negro sprawling, but Goldie had gone but a few blocks before he heard the sirens of the fire department.

"How in hell did I happen to overlook that," he muttered. Then he heard, too, the siren of the chief's car—a siren he knew of old. The chief had been in his office, two blocks distant, trying to bestir his mind to some plan by which he could salvage his own skin. He had heard the shot on the corner and run down to his car.

Three of Goldie's autos were within sight, now—two ahead and one behind.

"Step on her, Ray," ordered Goldie, who had slid back the glass partition between him and the

AWARDED FOR NECKLACE STORY

Walpole Man Gets $15 for Account of Woman Killed in Auto Crash

The story of a waiter who found a $10,000 necklace and tried to sell it for 50 cents won the first prize of $25 in the Boston Evening American's news tip contest last week.

The prize went to Sonia Markoff of 157 West Canton st., whose name together with the other winners is published today instead of yesterday because of the Legion parade.

Miss Markoff's tip was considered the best of the week, dealing as it did with the belief on the part of the finder that the valuable necklace lost by Mrs. H. Courtland Voorhees of Beacon st. and Manchester-by-the-Sea was a chain store product. He carried it for three days before discovering its value and returning it to Mrs. Voorhees.

Daniel Hennessy of 160 Diamond st., Walpole, won second prize of $15. He saw a woman killed in front of her two children in a Walpole auto crash in which six others were hurt, and after aiding the injured telephoned the American.

THIRD PRIZE TO QUINCY MAN

Third prize of $10 went to Andy Tribuna of 20 Hollis ave., Quincy, who gave this newspaper the first tip on the burning at sea of the Boston fishing schooner John Ericson.

C. L. Carney of Mountain ct., Northampton, N. H., telephoned that a plane had crashed on his farm while en route from Rockland, Me., to New York. He won the fourth prize of $5.

Fifth prize, also of $5, went to Mary McCarthy of [illegible] st., East Braintree. Miss McCarthy sent in the story of how Francis McCarthy of the same address found $1000 in Boston and received a reward of $50 on returning it.

The following were awarded $2 each.

OTHER PRIZE WINNERS

Joseph Shagrin of School st., Boston—First tip on School st. holdup; Thomas Clancy, Highland ave., Arlington—Two youthful auto thieves captured in Arlington after one was shot; Joseph De Castro, 11 Radcliffe st., Dorchester—Picture tip of Rose Key, bride-to-be at her decorated linotype machine city printing plant; Paul McCarthy, 195 College ave., Somerville—First legion week baby.

Herbert Achson, 396 Reservoir ave., Revere—Banana eating contest; Michael Rille, 6 Gloucester pl., Boston—Boy fell from fire escape; Louis Brown, 34 Lynde st., Boston—Auto hits baby carriage, injuring child; name withheld—No army mules in Massachusetts for legion parade; name withheld—Somerville Ford plant lays off men. Peter O'Hare, 129 Walnut st., Neponset—City truck and police car crash.

DORCHESTER WOMAN WINS

Elizabeth Ateta, 8 Barry pk., Dorchester—Mrs. G. Gardino of 435 Quincy st., Dorchester, locked on piazza when wind blew door closed; Thomas O'Neil, 20 Ridge rd., Milton, Falmouth forest fire; S. Norman, 5 Bay rd., Revere, clubhouse of Ocean View Improvement Association, Revere, broken into; Robert F. Kenney, 18 Winton st., Roslindale, Patrolman John Sullivan struck by hit-and-run driver; Lester Murphy, 217 Orchard st., Watertown, man drops dead in front of Watertown church.

A new office of the Massachusetts branch of the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform was opened today in the Statler Hotel, with Gen. Clarence R. Edwards and Gen. Sir William Hickie, president of the Irish Free State Area of the British Legion officiating.

Literature outlining the organization's drive for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment was circulated. Gen. Edwards and Gen. Hickie addressed members at a luncheon on the subject of prohibition.

OFFICER SHOT BY TRAPPED BURGLAR

Thieves Escape After Shooting Patrolman Tennis; Caught Breaking Into House

Patrolman Joseph Tennis, of the metropolitan police, Charles River Basin station, was shot early today by one of two thieves he surprised attempting to break into the Tea House on the esplanade.

The bullet struck him in the left thigh.

He was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital by Patrolman Walter Dennis. There surgeons extracted the bullet and reported his condition not serious.

SHOT WITHOUT WARNING

The policeman's assailants escaped. From a description that was sent out the young men are about 25, between 150 and 160 pounds each, and both wore light caps and dark suits.

According to police, the two burglars evidently were hiding in the shrubbery between the Esplanade and Beacon st. when they saw Patrolman Walter Dennis going towards the West Boston bridge to sound his duty call.

Feeling that they were safe, they emerged from the shrubbery and started to break into the house. Patrolman Tennis passed on his way to sound his duty call at a box at the Esplanade and Berkeley st.

Tennis stopped to try the doors of the tea house. Without warning one of the burglars fired the shot.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Tennis dropped to the ground and the pair fled. In the meantime Patrolman Dennis heard the shot and rushed back to his brother officer's assistance. He then took him to the hospital.

Near the scene of the shooting Special Officer Frank Philbrick later found a checkered cap believed to have been worn by one of the thieves. It contained an identification mark which police considered important and which they expect will lead to the arrest of one man.

Tennis will be 24 next Monday. He is a reserve officer on the Metropolitan list and has been on duty all summer, but was scheduled to end his active duty Saturday.

He is married and has one child, Joseph, two. His home is at 200 Walden st., Cambridge.

DRIVE ON FIRE THIS WEEK

State and city fire officials are combining forces this week in the annual Fire Prevention Week drive to stamp out every possible fire hazard existing in homes and public buildings throughout the state.

Governor Allen gave his support to the drive by issuing a proclamation asking that citizens co-operate with fire officials during the week.

Inspection tours of homes and public buildings are being made by members of the fire prevention bureau under the direction of Deputy Chief Albert J. Caulfield.

Chief Caulfield asks the co-operation of property owners in the drive. They can make the drive a success by removing rubbish piles from their cellars, cleaning clogged chimneys, rusty stovepipes and defective heating systems, he declares.

Cigarette smokers are cautioned by fire officials to be careful with stubs and autoists are warned not to toss lighted cigar or cigarette stubs from their cars while passing through wooded sections.

BOY IS HURT AS MACHINE FALLS OFF BENCH

Father Claims He Was Not Properly Cared for and Sent Home Alone

The Medford school committee today opened an investigation into an accident in which a pupil at the Hobbs junior high school was injured and not properly cared for by his teachers, according to the charges made.

Similar accidents, in one of which lack of proper treatment is said to have caused a long illness to a pupil, have been reported to the school committee, the member said.

BOY'S ANKLE HURT

The accident, which resulted in the order for investigation, occurred on September 15 in the manual training room of the Hobbs school. Richard H. Mulcahy, Jr., of 33 Kilgore ave., was the victim.

The boy was using a bending machine when it toppled off a bench and struck his ankle, cutting a deep two-inch gash and inflicting a bone bruise.

According to the boy's father, who reported the circumstances to the school committee, a teacher gave the victim some gauze, told him to bathe his feet in cold water and bandage it, and sent him home alone.

The teacher reported he personally treated the wound, applying a disinfectant, and was surprised when the boy wanted to go home because the wound was not serious.

The father of the boy and the school committee seek to learn why a school nurse or physician was not called.

Henry F. Fisk, headmaster of the school, and at least one of the women teachers have been ordered to appear before the school committee Oct. 20 to explain the circumstances.

Suspect Held in Vagrancy at Parade

"English" George Williams of Roxbury, arrested during the parade by traffic officers, police, was held in $1000 today by Judge John Duff in Municipal court, charged with vagrancy. Williams was arrested at Boylston and Tremont sts. after he stooped near where police found a veteran's pocketbook. The pocketbook bore the name of Cornelius J. Susan C. Ryan, 89, and Emma Roburg, 79, South End sisters and both widows, brought deep concern to Judge Thomas H. Dowd today in Municipal court, when a complaint of Susan charged Emma with fighting. It is said to have happened Sept. 25 in Tremont st., South End. Neither appeared and for lack of prosecution the court dismissed the case.

Gala Holiday Splurge Costs City $5000 for Cleanup

To tidy up Boston and put her back on a clean scale after yesterday's holiday splurge, it cost the city $5000, officials estimated today.

Two hundred laborers working all night collected 30 tons of paper and 20 truckloads of boxes spectators made sitting use of.

Six motor sweepers, 20 five-ton trucks, 20 horse-drawn carts and eight flushers were put to use, and today Boston stands as she did before—Quaker clean. Save for the flying paper from the tops of building, the streets of the city are "bibbed" and "tuckered"

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

Where Retired Financier Risked His Life to Rescue 20 Persons From the Flames Today

Eight State Wards Saved in Beachmont Blaze

Eight children state wards were rescued four over ladders and 11 others fled to safety when flames swept a three-family house in Endicott st., Beachmont shortly before daybreak today.

The fire of undetermined origin started in the basement of the building. The loss was $6000.

From the top floor Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jarvis and their son, John, 24, Mrs. Ida Francis, mother of Mrs. Jarvis, and Miss Ida Francis, a niece, escaped down smoke-filled stairways.

Four state wards living with them were carried down ladders by firemen. They were Gilbert Baker, two, William Gallion, eight months, Esther Peverd, a year old, and Herbert Bessetti, 21 months.

Mrs. Joseph Phillipe and two boarders, Miss Alice Copeland and William Bryant, carried out four other state children. They were Joseph Goff, three, Dorothy Gill, four, Eleanor Drew, 17 months, and Phyllis Jenkins, four months.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bardy and their son, Horace, fled from the basement.

WOMAN, 97, IS JELLY EXPERT

Mrs. Ann Ogilvie Coston, who celebrated her 97th birthday making grape jelly, is prouder of her knowledge of the fine points of jelly making than of any other household art.

She is Malden's eldest woman and she has never failed to put up a plentiful supply of fruits and pickles during her long and useful [illegible]. Today she is planning on making more jelly for the winter.

Mrs. Coston is a native of Aylesford, Nova Scotia, and lived in Auburn, Me., before coming to Malden. She retains all her faculties.

CELEBRATION IN MELROSE

A Tercentenary and Legion night will be staged by Melrose this evening at the Athletic Field, Lynn Fells Parkway and Tremont st., that city. Eight Legion bands will compete in a prize drill and the field is to be renamed in honor of Clarence DeMar, veteran marathoner, who resided in that city until recently.

Although the Tercentenary committee has received word from DeMar that he will be present at the dedicatory exercises if possible, it is not positively sure that he will attend. He stated three days ago that he would be unable to attend because of his work. He is a teacher at the Keene, N. H., Normal School.

An exhibition of fireworks and a bonfire will conclude the night's program. The American Legion bands and Legionaires are to parade from the Wyoming depot to the Legion bungalow for supper and will then march to the field.

THE ACTIVITIES OF Mrs. Ann Ogilvie Coston of 331 Lynn st., Malden, do not in any manner indicate that she is 97 years old. The photographer who made this picture is witness to that. She steps around the kitchen with no uncertain elasticity. What wonderful jelly she makes! That wedding cake was given to Mrs. Coston a few days ago. It was her wedding anniversary.

G. O. P. Leaders Open State Drive Friday

At its regular monthly meeting next Friday, the Republican State committee will receive first hand reports from its field workers and go over plans for the campaign mapped out by its chairman, Amos L. Taylor, for the election of William M. Butler, the re-election of Governor Allen and the balance of the State ticket.

Prior to the meeting of the full committee at its rooms in the Lawyers' Building, the executive committee will have a luncheon conference at the Hotel Bellevue.

In commenting on the situation that confronts the party, Chairman Taylor predicted that the tradition of never having Massachusetts represented in the Senate by two Democrats will not be broken this year.

"The voters," he said, "will realize before the election that we cannot afford to jeopardize the welfare of the State over a period of years by entrusting either our interests in the national Senate or our State government to the Democratic party.

SAYS REPUBLICANS LOYAL

"Reports coming to me from men and women who are out on the firing line do not indicate the defection from the Republican ranks that our opponents acclaim so loudly. Quite the contrary.

"The Republican party of Massachusetts has a record of which it may be justly proud. We propose to inform the people fully of Republican accomplishments before they register their decision at the polls."

Mrs. Frank Roe Batchelder, vice-chairman of the committee, speaking over Station WNAC last night contended that the Republican party is best equipped to put prosperity and employment back on a sound basis.

She urged her hearers to use "common sense" and not to be misled by "anti-prohibition propaganda and other devices."

Mrs. Batchelder was the second speaker to go on the air for the Republican ticket in a series of broadcasts that will be continued throughout the week.

"If we govern ourselves by common sense we shall not be diverted by any of the minor issues of prejudice or impulse," she declared. "We shall elect the candidates of the Republican party because common sense will convince us that by such course we shall best assure the general welfare.

VOTE AS AMERICANS

"When you vote you will, as loyal Americans, be guided by your consciences. But be guided also by common sense. Use your vote to benefit not any whim of the moment of any individual's personal aspirations, but your state, your country and yourself.

"What we, as loyal Americans, wish to do is to put the country back into enduring prosperity with steady employment and on a sound basis. What we as Republicans assert is that this result will be the soonest and surest and best accomplished by the election of Republican candidates pledged to support the wise policies and earnest efforts of President Herbert Hoover.

"It will not and cannot be accomplished by any performance of the Southern controlled Democracy, using camouflage in the form of anti-prohibition propaganda and other devices. And we in New England have the common sense to know that."

POLICE PRAISED BY LEGION

At the American Legion convention today a resolution, presented by John J. Wicher, Jr., representing the chairman of the resolutions committee, commending the Boston police for their efforts to eliminate "rowdies and hoodlums" who have no connection with the American Legion, but are masquerading as Legionnaires, and requesting that further steps be taken, was unanimously adopted amid applause and cheers.

The resolve pledged the Legion to assist the police in every possible way.

A. F. OF L. HEARS PLEA TO ORGANIZE 10,000,000 WOMEN WORKERS

FREY SCORES 'YELLOW DOG' DECISIONS

Nation Fast Returning to Normalcy, Secretary Hurley Tells Delegates

A plea to the American Federation of Labor to organize women in industry—now numbering nearly 10,000,000, ac- [illegible] the labor organization at the Hotel Statler by Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the women's bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor.

[illegible]

1. Praise by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley for staunch [illegible] by the A. F. of L. [illegible] program of national defense and his declaration [illegible] returning to economic normalcy.

2. Attack on the ruling of the Massachusetts Supreme Court on the yellow dog contract by John P. Frey, secretary of the metal trades department of the A. F. of L.

3. Introduction of scores of resolutions on unemployment, one calling on President Hoover to establish a long-range planning commission for public works [illegible]

4. Announcement that Cardinal O'Connell will be [illegible] Friday but will speak to them after [illegible] mass at the Cathedral Sunday.

5. Receipts of invitations from Los Angeles, Columbus, O., and St. Petersburg, Fla., to hold next year's convention in those cities.

INCREASING PROBLEM

"The increasing presence of women in the industrial field is one of the problems confronting organized labor," said Miss Anderson, who is a former member of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union.

"We find more and more women are going into the factories and workshops of the nation. We find many of them are working a long day at low wages. They have to endure this because they must work to live.

"As a single illustration of the situation, I will cite the case of a man who applied for work at a certain factory and was told they didn't want men, they wanted women. He went home and told his wife, and she went and got the job. Somebody in the family had to work.

"We know 8,500,00 women are working, and the actual number may well as as high as 10,000,000.

"Women have naturally appeared in industry as underbidders for work and thus they are being forced more and more into our industrial life. You must do your utmost to organize these women, for if you do not, you face their competition."

Secretary of War Hurley, who went to work in the Oklahoma coal mines at the age of 11 and who still holds a traveling card in the United Mine Workers of America, was accorded a prolonged ovation as he entered the hall, followed by Hanford MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion and now minister to Canada.

ECONOMIC NORMALCY

"President Hoover called the leaders of industry and labor together and requested that during the industrial depression wages would not be reduced and strikes would not be called, and with few exceptions both sides have kept their word," said Secretary Hurley.

"As a result of this, the nation is slowly but surely returning to a state of economic normalcy.

"Throughout the world we are having a certain species of unrest. We have heard rumors of foreign influence in this country. However, we take very little heed of it because we know labor in this country is composed of sincere patriots.

"Our program of adequate national defense, designed to protect our people from invasion and preserve the principles which have made this nation the happiest of all times, is also receiving the heartiest co-operation from the American Federation of Labor."

PRINCIPLES OF A. F. OF L.

MacNider told the delegates there would be no menace to the nation as long as the principles of the A. F. of L. prevailed.

Assailing the Massachusetts Supreme court for its decision last April that proposed legislation against yellow dog contracts was unconstitutional John P. Frey, secretary of the metal trades unit, declared:

"Judicially, in Massachusetts, the wage earner has no rights to trade union organization except in so far as the employer gives his consent. This decision is reminiscent of the dark ages."

Repeal of the Volstead act as an economic measure is asked in the prohibition resolution, and various measures, including work on a share basis" are urged for the unemployment problem.

The International Association of Fire Fighters will carry the battle for their resolution to regulate their hours to an eight-hour day and the American Federation of Musicians and the Associated Actors and Artists of America will ask the support of the body to halt the trend of music toward the mechanical field.

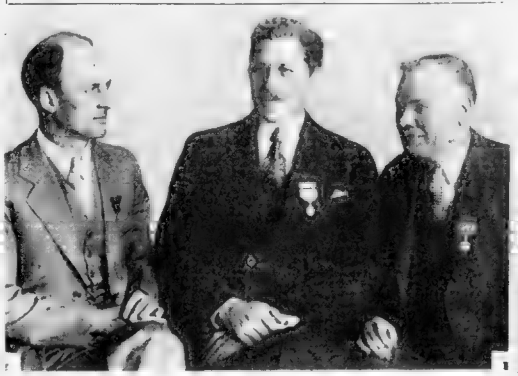
Legion and Labor Heads Get Together



HANFORD MacNIDER PATRICK J. HURLEY WILLIAM R. GREEN

Legion Historians Breakfast Guests

BROOKLINE HAS OWN PARADE

As a contributing feature to the American Legion convention, Brookline held a military parade [illegible] this afternoon. [illegible]

The parade roster included delegations from Norfolk [illegible] counties as well as the [illegible] Electric post band, the Racine, Wis., drum and bugle corps, Grand Army veterans, Gold Star Mothers, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Boy and Girl Scouts, cadets from St. Mary's and St. Aidan's parishes and children of the marching ex-service men.

Prizes were to be awarded for the best band, best drum and bugle corps, largest unit in line of march and the largest unit from the greatest distance.

LEGION BANDS IN PRIZE DRILL

Boston Common near the Tercentenary Tribune, resembled West Point parade ground today as 11 Legion bands and two drill teams competed for prizes.

The bands marched before the judges, trumpets blaring and after being checked on their marching and martial music, played symphonic music on the Tribune stage.

The drill teams in cadet uniforms went through intricate drills with clocklike precision. The People's Gas Co., Chicago, Post No. 336, and East Lynn, Post No. [illegible] were the only drill teams competing.

The judges headed by Capt. M. J. Hunter of the Army Base will announce the winners this afternoon.

Bands in the contest are: Electric Post No. 228, Milwaukee, W[illegible]; John E. Miller No. 146, Beaver Dam, Wis.; Batavia, N. His appointment to the Boston base was made last June by President Hoover to take effect on completion of foreign service in the Hawaiian Islands. General Walker took over the duties formerly carried out by Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown in the interim.

Lexington Fights 2 Big Brush Fires

Lexington firemen were called out for two brush fires yesterday. The first was on Concord Hill, where a wide tract of woodland between School st. and Lincoln st. was swept. After the firemen had extinguished one side and were battling the other side of the fire, the first side again started up.

Last evening another brush fire broke out in the swampy woodland off Marrett rd., in the rear of the Mouiton estate and Daney farm.

Probation Granted Revere Bootlegger

George W. Garrett of Revere was found guilty in Municipal court today charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale in the Legion convention district. With John Dempsey of Georgetown a companion he was placed on probation by Judge Elijah Adlow.

EDDIE CANTOR is given credit for having composed most of the sketches in Earl Carroll's revue called "Sketch Book," now at the Shubert. As it turns out, the playgoer has gained something by Mr. Cantor's unexpected drift from blackface to literature. For it is a [illegible] to [illegible] times [illegible]. For all Mr. Cantor may take [illegible] might [illegible] grain of praise [illegible] al that Earl Carroll has done to make "Sketch Book" a real box office [illegible].

FIVE-YEAR CONTRACT IS GIVEN JAMES RENNIE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8. With a five-year First National contract sealed, signed and delivered, James Rennie says au revoir to Hollywood Friday for a trip to Europe. When the school bell rings January first he will be back among us, ready to begin work on the first picture, "Broadminded," to be directed by Clarence Badger and co-featuring Fred Kohler.

The romance between Jimmie Rennie and [illegible] to be a thing of the past. The first inkling friends of the Rennies had that all was not peace and quiet was when Dorothy went to Europe with her mother instead of coming to Hollywood. Now Jimmie is stopping in New York long enough to catch his boat for Europe. The Rennies have always been vehement on the denial that there was any trouble but [illegible] to each say there is a breach that has widened during the many months of separation.

The Division of University Extension, State Department of Education, is offering this course in co-operation with the Boston Public Library.

ARMY REVIEW IN HEARST NEWSREEL

News events of greatest importance and interest are among the features of the Hearst Metrotone News reel as shown on the screen at Loew's State this week. One of the highlights is the appearance of Von Hindenburg, president of Germany. In its greatest demonstration held since the World War the new Germany army is shown being reviewed by President Hindenburg. Hindenburg, now an old man but still virile and active, is one of the few survivors of the former Kaiser's wartime chiefs.

That the imprisonment of Gandhi in India has not caused a cessation of revolution activities is strikingly shown by several forceful scenes showing a visit to one of the imprisoned leader's strongholds to inspect the newly organized forces to battle the British.

NEW THEATER OPENS OCT. 24

The Publix Oriental Theater located in Mattapan sq., will open at noon October 24. The house, a de luxe one with a mammoth organ, its architecture combining the color of the East with the comforts of the West. The [illegible] seat[illegible].

The soft tones and color schemes blend perfectly under the indirect light, the spell of the Orient should put one in a fine frame of mind to enjoy the screen offerings. The slogan chosen for the new theater—"An [illegible] Different." It seems to be the last word in community theaters.

STUNT COSTS VARIETY BOYS' THEIR JOBS

Now it can be told! Val and Ernie Stanton were summarily "fired" out of a show in Boston last summer, and now for the first time the facts come out. This is the result of the chance that brings the Stantons on to the Scollay vaudeville bill this week, with a man who had a hand in their "trouble." He is Don Humbert. This is what happened:

Val Stanton

It was late last August, and brave Mr. Alexander Leftwich ventured forth with a musical revue called "Tattle Tales," including Val and Ernie Stanton.

One night the Messrs. Stanton ventured along Tremont st. and met an old friend of theirs, Don Humbert. They decided to put Joe in their act and agreed to keep silent about the matter until Joe appeared.

It came time for the performance and the Stantons went on to do their act and out walked Mr. Humbert, guitar and all, and proceeded to stop the show.

In less time than it takes to tell, Mr. Leftwich was backstage and promptly handed the Stanton boys their notice, for their mischievous stunt.

NEWS OF ACTIVITIES IN AUTOMOBILE WORLD

CUSTOM BODIES NOW BUILT BY PACKARD

Smart town cars, landaulets, cabriolets and other individual custom cars, the bodies of which heretofore have always been the product of custom body builders, are now being designed and built by the Packard Motor Car Co., as a part of its factories in Detroit the Packard Co. has established its own custom body shops says William P. Naylor, Packard Motor Car Co.

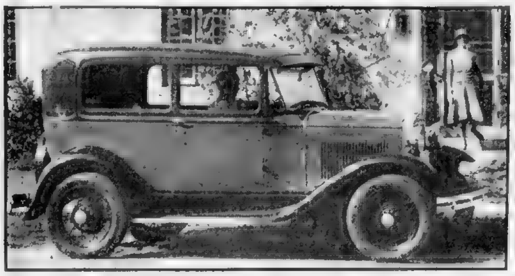
Nearly a year has been spent by Packard in setting up the new custom body factory and in creating its own individual custom body designs. The shops which are completely self contained with their own wood working mills, experimental laboratories and other like equipment are now working at full force building individualized custom bodies for the newly announced Packard Eights.

The new Packard individual custom line includes all-weather town car landaulets, cabriolet sedan limousines, all weather sport cabriolets and all weather sport landaulets. In addition bodies by other well known custom body builders are available on the Packard chassis as in the past.

Each of the cars has a number of innovations for this type of vehicle. All have smart slanting windshields, except the cabriolet sedan limousine. Several of them are equipped with adjustable rear seats. Almost unlimited opportunity is given for gratifying personal tastes in the matter of upholstery and colors.

Designers in the new shops are said to have struck a new note in combination owner-chauffeur driven cars in a new type cabriolet sedan limousine. In this car a divisional glass fitted into the rear of the front seat to make a limousine when it is raised disappears completely when lowered to convert the car into an owner driven sedan.

Tudor Sedan Popular as Family Car



WITH THE REAR COMPARTMENT affording ample room for three passengers, the Ford Tudor sedan is gaining in popularity as a family car. It is safe for the children since there is no danger of their opening the doors.

NEW SERIES OF NASH HINTED

Intense activities about the big Nash Motor Co. plants in Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee, this week indicate an early announcement of the new series of Nash motor cars awaited with so much interest by motorists throughout the country and by the automobile trade, according to H. C. Hurt, Nash New England Co.

It was learned today that more than 5000 men have been added to the working forces of the famous Wisconsin factories during the last fortnight and that the plants are rapidly approaching top production speed in order to supply the big volume of advance orders which will supply dealers through the country in time for the public announcement and display.

Train and carload shipments of the new cars were reported moving from the various plants to distant market points during the past week. It was learned that trainload shipments went forward to Pacific Coast and Pacific Northwest points scheduled to Nash distributors and dealers who have been eagerly awaiting their share of the 1931 models.

According to authoritative reports, four new and strikingly advanced series of Nash cars will soon be officially announced and displayed.

'Jumbo' Rides on High

HOLLER GIVEN NEW POST

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 8—Appointment of W. E. Holler as an assistant general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, succeeding I. C. Chick who was recently transferred to the Cadillac division of General Motors as sales manager, was announced here today by H. J. Klingler, vice president and general sales manager of Chevrolet.

Holler, formerly Eastern regional sales manager for Chevrolet, will have sales jurisdiction over the Eastern half of the United States following his promotion while D. E. Ralston continues as assistant general sales manager in charge of the Western half of the country.

Each move is a distinct promotion and is in line with the established Chevrolet policy of selecting new executives from within the Chevrolet ranks, Klingler explained.

Dodge Adds 47 New Dealers in August

Sales officials of Dodge Brothers Corporation announce that department records just compiled show that 47 new dealers were added during the month of August. The largest number of new dealers for the month was reported by the Omaha district with the Minneapolis and Boston districts, respectively, adding the second and third largest number.

Not a Suggestion, Just a Condition

Motorists in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., have found a new loophole in the one-hour parking rule for cars. They park in a restricted zone for one hour and then move the cars merely a foot and park for another hour.

WILLYS CHIEF OPTIMISTIC

Toledo, O., Oct. 8.—Willys-Overland's notable 30 per cent August increase over July in unit sales, accompanied as it is by the first general improvement in car loadings and steel tonnage, indicates to a definite and encouraging upturn, President L. A. Miller said here today.

"Statistics of saving deposits, coupled with some gain in employment generally, indicate an improvement in purchasing power, production and sales.

"Merchandise stocks generally, not only in the automotive field but in various lines, are very low and there is sound reason to believe that the shipment of delayed orders for finished goods and heavy wheat shipments from the crop area may continue the up-swing in traffic contribution to railroad income.

"After a prolonged depression, such as we have had, there comes a time when a positive up-turn in business is inevitable."

MARATHON CAR IN WASHINGTON

Ray Priest, official A. A. A. observer who is riding with the ... marathon car was received by President Hoover during the car's first visit to Washington last week on its fifth trip of a series of transcontinental runs in an attempt to pile up more mileage than any car has heretofore.

The A. A. A. official had already traveled more than 35,000 miles since the beginning of the run July 1, more miles than the average driver or passenger encounters in three years. He has traveled through 37 states and made a careful study of the highways of the country.

The president showed keen interest in Priest's experiences since his present tour was begun.

"Never has there been a time in the history of highway transportation," the President was told by Priest, "when there was such a co-ordinated program to improve the nation's arteries of travel. In all of the 37 states I have visited so far, road-building agencies are employing a maximum number of men and pushing construction to the limit. This applies to transcontinental as well as state roads."

Mother's Care in Feeding Makes the Child Strong

Failure in Weight Is Bad Sign

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

THERE IS no greater blessing than a mother's watchful care. It is her attention to proper feeding that makes her children build up strong and vigorous bodies. This oversight of their eating should not cease with babyhood, but must continue from pre-school age through adolescence.

Dr. Copeland

How is a mother to know whether her child is receiving the proper food and whether his weight is what it should be? One of the very best tests is noting daily whether the child conforms to the standard set up for the average healthy child of the same age and who, he makes a continuous gain in growth and weight.

Books have been written upon the subject and are made available by all libraries. Cards are printed with full data concerning the proper procedure. Or your doctor can guide you in it.

Failure to gain weight points to malnutrition. Malnutrition means underweight and undernourishment. This condition is a real danger to the growing child if it is not quickly discovered and remedied. Out of it may be life-long ill-health or under par condition.

It has been said that approximately one-third of American children are suffering from malnutrition. This is true of the rich even more so than of the poor.

This condition may result from various causes. Besides deficient or improper food, it may be brought about by some physical defect, such as decayed teeth, diseased tonsils or adenoids. It may arise from under-nourishment caused by a over-active. It may mean poor health habits. Lack of rest and proper sleep or too little fresh air and sunshine. Any of these will pull down a child's health in quick order.

If your child is listless, lacking in vitality, nervous, fretful, tires easily so that he seems lazy, then something had better be done about it. He should be under a doctor's care. If he is underweight there must be an immediate and systematic building up for health.

Such a child should have a nourishing breakfast with which to start off the day. He should also have a lunch in the morning half way between breakfast and luncheon. This eaten will help to make up a greater weight gain and provide for rapid growth.

A normal child requires as much food as does an adult. This fact is not always recognized. So if your growing boy or girl eats voraciously, you will know that the food is really needed.

Chic in Touches of Feathers and Furs

By ANN ARDEN

(ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.)

IT IS easy to have a feather in your cap this fall. Along with frills we have taken up feathers again. Not cascading plumes, of course, but the pert quills and little cockades that used to give our bonnets that jaunty carefree look.

* * *

NOTHING GIVES quite such a sporting turn to a chapeau as a little feather tucked in somewhere about brim or crown. Agnes uses such feathers for the Robin Hood hats she has created. And any number of the Paris milliners have followed suit. Some perch a tuft of feathers high on a beret, others tuck them in the brim and still others use a trim little quill as in the double brimmed sports hat seen recently.

* * *

* * *

THE FORMAL hat of black velvet is a model from Rose Descat. Its soft brim turns back from the face, is caught in deep folds on one side, and becomes very full around the back, where a bow of black satin ribbon is posed. The fluffy scarf of cross fox completes the becoming face frame.

* * *

FUR SCARFS are here, there and everywhere on the smartest suits and frocks. Smoothly fur, nie handled with the most tailored casual like results. Lapin rough and shaved appears again and again in several guises. As does caracul, and some of the other pliable furs. There are any number of uses for a trim scarf of this type.

* * *

SO MANY unexpected things are happening in the field of millinery that we have wondered whether anything brand new could surprise us. But we find that we can be very pleasantly surprised. The effective under brim trimming that is shown in new hats from Agnes leaves us gasping with pleasure. It is just the touch needed for the gracious new styles in frocks. Soft fabric bows and clusters of flowers are used effectively in this new manner.

* * *

THE CLIP PIN is finding a greater variety of uses. Two, placed perfectly, are very smart on a black turban, on a classic pump, or at the neck line of a frock for daytime or evening.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WHDH.

All Men in Love Are Heroic

By HELEN ROWLAND.

AREN'T MEN brave?

There may be a few slackers in wartime, and a few who shrink at the thought of a flat-fight. But in LOVE, all men are positively heroic! They will marry ANYTHING—or anybody—once the notion seizes them.

But exactly what mental processes, the average man chooses a life-mate, I shall always remain one of the world's great mysteries. Or, perhaps the mystery is that he doesn't USE any mental processes.

I have seen a girl with a pert nose, a pert chin and a pert eye, get a pert proposal from a pert young man, and be pert and happy ever after.

A divorcee, who has made one or two trips matrimonial, has far fewer chances of marrying than a spinster who has never proved that she could make any man miserable. One divorce appears to be just a START on the road to marriage, these days.

A gold-digger with a glittering eye and honey-colored hair appeals to a man's Santa Claus instinct—and a flat-minded girl who is satisfied with a movie show and a pretty calendar for Christmas apparently goes something of her value in the matrimonial market.

A man with domestic tastes, who loves his food and his quiet home-evenings will cheerfully marry a highbrow who can't boil an egg, or a butterfly who wants to play around at night clubs until morning—and then wonder why Heaven or Fate put the gipsy curse on him.

Don't ask me WHY. I'm asking YOU!

Why does a man with a flivver imagine that a chauffeur-driven limousine with a girl who is noted for her limousine tastes?

Why does a woman's spotted "past" always inspire a man with the desire to make her future bright and rosy?

You've got to admire their BRAVERY. But, there are times when "discretion is the better part of valour." And the chief of these is the wedding!

Eggless Cake, One of Popular Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WHDH.

I HAVE BEEN receiving a great many letters from ladies who attended the Cooking School Opening at the Hotel Statler, who either did not have time to put down all of Mrs. Cross recipes, or did not get a program or failed to keep the one they got. These letters request what seemed to be the most popular of the dishes Mrs. Cross made, so I am going to print the ones most often asked for.

Martha Lee

If there are others you have not written me for, but would like to have, just drop me a line and I'll be glad to send them to you in a personal note. One of the most popular recipes at the school was the Eggless Cake with Apricot Frosting made by Mrs. Cross on the opening day.

EGGLESS CAKE.

1 cup sugar.
1¼ cups milk.
2¼ cups flour.
3 tsps. baking powder.
½ tsp. salt.
½ tsp. nutmeg.
1 tsp. vanilla.
1 cup seeded raisins.

Blend shortening and sugar. Add the raisins which have been scalded, drained and floured. Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Add the milk alternately with the dry ingredients. Beat and stir until all the ingredients are thoroughly mixed. Flavor with vanilla. Bake in well-greased pan about one hour at 350 deg. F. Cool and frost.

APRICOT FROSTING.

1 tsp. lemon juice.
Confectioners' sugar.

Cream the shortening and the apricot pulp and confectioners sugar alternately. Add enough confectioners sugar to make of right consistency and spread.

This Minced Steak a la Stanley also received a number of requests. It really is a sort of glorified hamburg and certainly lifts that ordinary dish into the realms of fart and imagination.

MINCED STEAK A LA STANLEY

1 cup soft bread crumbs.
¾ cup milk.
½ tsp. salt.
3 bananas (peeled and cut in halves lengthwise)

Add the milk and seasoning to the bread. Knead the ground beef and add the milk and bread mixture gradually until mixture is smooth and spongy. Shape in imitate steaks. Spread with shortening. Place in well greased pan and bake in a pot oven. After 5 minutes place banana halves on top and continue baking until meat and bananas are nicely browned. If baked in a glass platter, surround with mashed potatoes forced through a pastry bag and tube and brown under broiler.

As perhaps you remember, Mrs. Cross used codfish in one form or another in her cooking demonstration each day. Now, of course, New England housewives are pretty well familiar with it for that reason any variations are decidedly welcomed. I am giving the three which she used during the cooking school sessions.

CODFISH PIE

Pie shell
1½ cups shredded codfish
1 cup milk or tomato sauce
2 eggs
1½ cups mashed potatoes

Wash codfish in cheesecloth. Squeeze dry. Soak bread crumbs in milk or tomato sauce 10 minutes. Add codfish. Stir in the slightly beaten egg. Bake in pie shell 20 minutes. Force potatoes through pastry bag and tube around edges of filled shell. Brown in oven and serve.

CREAMED CODFISH VICTORIA

1 cup shredded codfish
1 cup white sauce
6 slices toast
2 hard boiled eggs (whites and whites chopped separately)
1 tbsp. capers—or chopped parsley.

Put shredded codfish in cheesecloth. Run cool water through it then squeeze. Heat the shredded codfish and chopped egg whites in the white sauce. Serve on toast sprinkle with the egg yolks and capers on top.

CODFISH BALLS

½ cup shredded codfish
1 cup mashed potatoes
1 egg slightly beaten

Wash codfish in cheesecloth, squeeze dry. Add to mashed potatoes. Stir in the beaten egg. Shape into small balls and fry in deep fat. Serve on potato nests.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN lack lustre hair starts to turn gray, it often shows a red cast. The coloring pigments in the inner hair cells changes, gradually lessening. When it disappears the hair is colorless. Nobody knows why it ups and gits. Probably some chemical action. Prematurely gray hair is usually inherited.

There was a time when women believed that soap and water injured the skin; they used cream and nothing else. It is true of some skins that soap is an irritant, but they are few, usually affected with a suggestion of some skin ailment, like eczema. Soap and water impart a feeling of freshness that no cosmetic can equal. A creamy coating should be applied after the facial tubbing. Always at night the skin should be lubricated.

Experience Counts in Charm

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will discuss a problem of heart and home at 6:35 p. m., over station WLEX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

We are two girls age 16, considered attractive and some have even called us beautiful. We are very popular among the girls and have many friends among boys over the age of 17. We are not conceited, but we are sick of flowers, candy and dances. We live in a part where there are college fellows from 19 up, we are certainly not. We do not smoke or drink. Will you tell us why this is?

ALICE and PAT.

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Girls: I believe you might be entitled to be a little bit conceited. Very few girls of your age have the poise and charm that you have. You are very much mature for that's been my college rather than the high school fry who has only had the advantages of high school. It indicates, does it not, that your line shows a greater degree of development? Write to us again and tell us how you manage to keep the boys interested. So many girls write just the reverse. They write just the reverse. They write that they have a great succession with the high school boys, but when it comes to college age—that's another story. Congratulations.

A Daughter's Freedom

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am 23, and have been self supporting for six years, and love my work. My mother, now a widower, is left alone in quite all kinds of pressure on me to move my home with her. But I have shared with her in the years with my girl friends and wish to continue. Am I to blame for not doing by my mother what?

INDEPENDENT.

Dear Independent: There seems to be no reason why you should not if you think? But since your mother is still so young I think she will really need you. And she does not force an unwilling daughter to be her companion, and if she starts out immediately to make a life of her own. At present, she is lonely, grief-stricken, and from a selfish point of view, unreasonable but I am sure she will see later that she does not really need you. And you, of course, are entitled to your own life, though you don't want to be too hard hearted about it. Couldn't you, by discussing the whole question by correspondence for a few months, your mother life with you and your friends?

Lighting Her Cigarette

Proper to Ask Young Man to Oblige

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

So many of my friends have benefited by your helpful hints on social etiquette that I have decided to submit my questions for your convenience to answer.

1. Is it proper for a young lady to ask a young man to light her cigarette if he does not offer?

2. Should the young lady speak to the young man first, or wait for his greeting? Would that draw a reputation as being cheap at any time?

O. C.

1 Yes. Or, better if she reasons for a light, or makes a motion of beginning to light her cigarette, the young man will if he is a gentleman, at once, produce, search for the matches, or the lighter to light it for her.

2. It is the privilege of the "ladies" to acknowledge first an acquaintanceship with a man. He waits for the woman to bow before he bows; he waits for the woman to speak before he speaks, as they meet on the street, for instance, and he waits for the woman to extend her hand for a handshake before he extends his hand.

Bride's Linen Chest

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have had so many letters lately asking me for the list of things that should be included in an average hope chest that I am going to answer all of these letters at once by publishing the list for the linen chest of the bride-to-be

Twelve sheets, twenty-four pillow cases, four bed spreads, mattress covers, blanket covers of thin washable material, two single blankets for each bed, two summer blankets for each bed, one satin comforter for each bed, four tablecloths one protective table pad four linen table covers, twelve dinner napkins (36, 22 or 24 inches), twelve tea napkins, four or five breakfast and luncheon sets (centerpiece and matching doilies), twelve heavy bath towels, four bath mats, twenty-four face towels, twenty-four hand towels, six embroidered guest towels, twelve face cloths six crash linen dish towels, six red-banded linen dish towels, twelve dust cloths, dish cloths, pot cloths, six roller towels for kitchen, three bolsters, six buffet scarfs and two dresser or bureau scarfs.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

BOSTON'S LUCKY GIRL

by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER 42

"LIFE . . . THE BEST you can hope for is life," Allan answered that. It kept echoing in Cathie's ears while hey were on their way downstairs. It seemed funny, leaving the little familiar room and riding downstairs in an elevator, with policeman with red hair and a big nose operated the elevator, Cathie shrank back, close to Mr. Allan. She felt queer and nervous. Hoped these wouldn't be any people in the halls. . . . "Life" . . . she, Cathie Farnsworth, who used to be Cathie Page, to be shut up in a jail all her life. For something she didn't do! It was crazy. Didn't Gordon say he'd have her out by tomorrow?

Cathie cast another look at Mr. Allan. Mr. and Mrs. Partington Allan, who was supposed to be such a big lawyer. Everybody said he was wonderful. He didn't look very wonderful. Just a gross fat man with a bald head and a big stomach. . . . Talking about her getting life for nothing!

"That's Her"

The elevator came to a stop and Cathie tossed her hair back impatiently. Maybe she'd better get another lawyer. She'd speak to Gordon about it tomorrow.

"This way, Mrs. Farnsworth, please?"

"Yes, that's her!"

Cathie jumped. A funny looking little man with walrus whiskers and a high squeaky voice like a woman's was pointing at her excitedly. . . . "That's her!" he cried again. "I couldn't see her face good, but that was about the build, and her hair. I'd know her hair, the way it looked in the moonlight!"

Cathie looked at the inspectors and at Mr. Allan. Nobody said anything. They just waited right through the room and out again into the corridor. The elevator door opened and the policeman with the red hair and the big nose took them upstairs again, to the women's quarters.

"Mr. Allan!"

"Yes, Mrs. Farnsworth"

"Mr. Allan, do you mean to tell me that that man I never saw before in my life identified me, and they're going to take his word for it."

Lawyer Rebuked

"Oh, no. We don't take anyone's word for anything. Still, it will all help to corroborate Chester, Farnsworth's story. As I told you before, I don't like it—"

"Don't like it! It's the silliest thing I ever heard in my life! I never SAW the man before. Why didn't they give me a chance to talk! I'd have told him—"

Mr. Allan smiled. "That's the spirit! Get as mad as you like, feel every fight in you. Then we—"

"Why don't YOU get some fight?" Cathie flared. "Why didn't you tell him? Oh, this law—law—law makes me sick. Why, I'll be an old woman before they let me get up and say what really happened! Why can't I tell them . . . oh, what's the use! A perfectly strange man walking in and saying he saw me . . . saw me doing what? Shooting my husband?"

Allan shook his head, but he didn't smile. "The man is an elevator operator in an apartment house over here in the Presidio Terrace district. He was walking down to the car line when he passed your house and heard the shot. He says he saw a woman stick her head out of the window—"

"Wait! Wait—I think I did, I mean I'm sure I did I heard the shot, and I thought it was probably a tire blowing out, so I got up after a minute and went to the window—"

"Yes, but weren't you in your own room at the time?"

"Of course! And I looked out —diagonally, you know, to the street, but there were no cars, and I didn't even see the man!"

"Sure you were in your room —not in the nursery when you weren't in your husband's room?"

"No. Why, if I'd been in there . . . Mr. Allan, DON'T you believe what I'm telling you? Because if you don't, there isn't any use of my trying—"

Mr. Allan wiped his bald head. "My dear girl, I'm only trying to help you. Try to trust me, please."

"Whatever you say, Mr. Allan," she said dutifully.

She was acutely conscious of all that was happening now. She knew, at last, that she was going in be on trial for her life.

Allan and Gunther settled down to hard work. They questioned Cathie about Chester. Had she ever heard that he was sent away from home for a time because of a too great interest in the girl Marguerite? No, Cathie never had, but it seems that Mr. Allan found witnesses, old servants, to testify to the fact that Chester was sent away to school when he was 13 and Marguerite about 25, and the whole household was upset.

"Poor Marguerite," Cathie sighed. "But it's funny to think of her ever having played with Chester. She hated him so toward the end. Why, she was even trying to blackmail him on account of those old stories about her mother, though she knew there was no truth in them."

"How do you know that?" Allan asked quickly.

"Why, he told me—Chester, it was funny, too. It was when he and Enid first came from abroad, Marguerite was sick with a cold. She kept in her bed and when I went up to talk to her Chester was in the room and she was asking him about money. He explained to me later, and told me what she meant."

"Thanks, Mrs. Farnsworth, that may be valuable. Did she ever tell you anything more about her past life?"

"No, except that—that—" It seemed queer to have to tell them what Marguerite had told about a child . . . still . . .

"She told me she had a little baby once, that died."

"My God! Do you know when?"

Knows Too Much

"No," Cathie said. Then she remembered that long ago Mr. Farnsworth told her that Marguerite went away for a while. That must have been the time.

"Unless it was two or three years ago. . . ."

"Is there anything else you can think of?"

Something made Cathie think of the perfume . . . that heavy, musky scent that Chester's wife and Marguerite both used. L'Ocean Vert, it was called.

"Thank God for that," Mr. Allan groaned.

Cathie thought of something else. "There was a beautiful silk shawl in the room that night. I had real lace on it.

But this didn't impress Mr. Allan favorably at all. It brought to mind that other nightgown, the blood-stained one that Cathie had.

"Oh, d—n you Marguerite," he sighed. "She could testify that she hid it, all right, but she could also testify that you did it to shield you . . . after all, it's just as well they haven't found her. I hope to God they never find her. She knows too much."

"But I'm innocent," Cathie reminded him gently.

"Well, I hope we can prove it," he said gloomily.

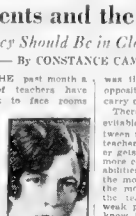
Parents and the Teacher

They Should Be in Close Touch

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

DURING THE past month a vast horde of teachers have swarmed back to face rooms filled with squirming youngsters leaving a bit of a rough time trying to get readjusted from the lax method followed during vacation days. Also teachers, too, have had vacations and are refreshed and probably facing the new term with high hopes and resolutions to make their work count for something.



Constance Cameron

This is no idle surmise on my part, for having had a mother who taught for 22 years, I can remember that each fall she returned to her classes bursting with ambition and plans for better work than ever before. I also remember that in about two months those hopes seemed to sag, that her face took on a little "What's the use?" look. Because of the children, because she was tired? No, because of the opposition of mothers to help her carry out her plans.

There is a regrettable but inevitable sense of antagonism between the child's mother and his teacher many times. The teacher feels that personal, and often more correct, slant on the child's abilities and weaknesses that the mother usually asserts that the teacher knows not. Junior's weak points because she doesn't know him, that he is one of a mass.

The question we are going to think about is whether you as parents ARE doing all you can to help the teacher help your child.

Why do you pay school taxes, why select good teachers only to kill all their efforts to educate and arouse interest in your children? It seems silly. And education is NEVER education until it has been APPLIED. Help your child's teacher by allowing and encouraging the child to apply at home what the long-suffering teacher has tried so ardently to teach him in school. The teacher can't do it alone. She needs your co-operation.

Action Reversed in Wall Street

Things that put stocks down in the 1929 slump are conspicuous for their absence in the current slump. Last year it was stock, money and commodity inflation. Now it is stock, money and commodity deflation.

Montgomery Is Given Review

One Wall St. writer says today:

"Montgomery Ward is selling around $25 a share. That means the entire capitalization has a market value of not much more than $115,000,000. The company is doing a business of close to $275,000,000 annually. Talk of a reduction in the $3 dividend rate has been the reason for the drop in the stock. While there may be some truth in that, one feels warranted in predicting that before many years Montgomery Ward will be paying more than $3 a share. To do that it would have to [illegible] a profit of less than 5 per [illegible] on gross sales of $300,000,000."

CURB MARKET DRIFTS LOWER IN DULLNESS

New York, Oct. 8—The curb market [illegible] trading today. The number of pronounced weak spots was smaller and the turnover dwindled.

Brazilian Traction was also heavy, but the selling in these issues, linked with the revolution in Brazil, was less vigorous than recently. Domestic utilities showed fractional losses on the average.

Ford Motor of Canada "A" was a feature, with a loss of about three points. Anglo-Chilean nitrate hardened and rallied more than a point. Niles Bement Pond, Noranda and [illegible] a new low.

16 P.C. OCTOBER GAIN IS SHOWN

Chicago, Oct. 8—Container Corporation of America today reported net shipments for September of $1[illegible] as compared with $1[illegible] in August, an increase of approximately 14 per cent.

Walter P. Paepcke, president, also announced that orders booked October 1 show an improvement of 16 per cent over bookings September 1.

"Our net shipments for September were the largest of any month this year," Mr. Paepcke said. "Although somewhat below the total for the corresponding month of 1929, our tonnage volume last month compared favorably with that of September, 1928."

In tons, Container's September shipments amounted to 29,349, as against 24,890 in the preceding month. Approximately 500 tons of this 4459-ton gain reflects additional business of the Gibraltar Corrugated Paper Co., Inc., acquired last month.

Container Corporation is the leading producer of shipping containers in the country, serving 18,000 customers in practically every major industry.

Two Leaders Hold Steel Prices Are at Bottom

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Oct. 8—Two outstanding ironmasters of the country have expressed the opinion to me that [illegible] at the bottom. If they are correct, the turn would be a sign pointing to general economic recovery.

Asked to what extent the Bethlehem Steel Corporation was taking advantage of low commodity prices and depressed conditions to put its plant in readiness for the next era of prosperity, [illegible] informed me:

M. S. Rukeyser

"The most important constructive sign at present in the steel industry is the stabilization of prices. We believe the low point has been passed. Bethlehem has been moving ahead steadily with respect to development work, construction and other forward looking activities throughout this entire period, recognizing that in the course of events the country will again enjoy good business conditions."

* * *

Tom M. Girdler, president and chairman of the Republic Steel Corporation, the new merger put through last year by the associates of Cyrus Eaton, who, by the way, is seeking to block Mr. Grace's merger with the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, gave me his views on the outlook. It was [illegible] customers themselves. He said:

"For the first time in many months buyers are showing an increasing interest in making purchases for future delivery, indicating growing confidence in the underlying firmness of prices.

"It is significant that at a time of reduced operations in the steel industry some large buyers are seeking to place orders at current price levels for first quarter of 1931 requirements. Producers, however, are disinclined to accept commitments beyond the end of the current year.

"The level of steel prices has fallen 12 per cent in the last year to the lowest point since 1915. The prices of many steel products have dropped to a point where many large consumers themselves realize any further decline would serve no constructive purpose. While the steel industry is endeavoring to bring about economies in production, there is a firm intention of maintaining present wage levels, consumers of steel are equally interested with producers in the success of the policy."

* * *

Further evidence of the awakening [illegible] vice president of the Austin Company, international firm of engineers and builders, with headquarters at Cleveland and branch offices in 16 cities throughout the country. He said:

"Large industrial companies throughout the country are beginning to take advantage of low costs of building construction to prepare for the inevitable upswing of the business cycle.

"The total value of contracts placed for construction with my firm in August and September was substantially in excess of the corresponding months of 1929. This represents an even larger physical volume of business because costs of construction according to the Austin Company's index, are the lowest in eight years.

"We find that many industrial leaders whose confidence in the future expansion of industry has not been shaken, are planning to avail themselves of the existing market for building wherever the need exists or is likely to exist as business revives."

I find a new [illegible] among executives of big business. [illegible] they are fearful lest they later be criticised by directors for stupid waiting at a time when perhaps they should have considered affirmative action to take advantage of prevailing "bargains." The turning point in regard to sentiment [illegible] when the courageous Edgar [illegible] president of the Western Electric Company told the world that he had bought copper and some other low priced commodities [illegible] months in advance. Picking bottom in commodities is like picking bottom for stocks, but many executives are showing a disposition to follow strong leadership.

Printing Paper Industry About Normal

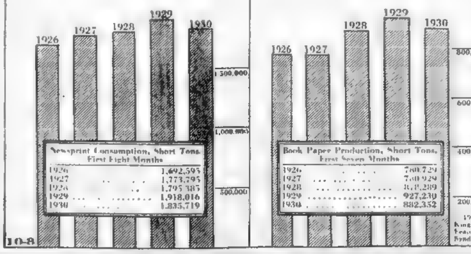
Chart shows the consumption of newsprint paper by 445 leading publishers in the first eight months of 1930 and the same periods of the past four years; and the production of book paper by the entire industry during the first seven months of 1930 and the corresponding periods of 1929, 1928, 1927 and 1926. Newsprint Source: Amer. Newspaper Publishers' Assn. Book Paper Source: U. S. Department of Commerce.

Newsprint Consumption

The quantity of newsprint paper consumed by publishers, principally newspaper organizations, during the first eight months of this year was 4.3% under the corresponding period of 1929, but 2.2% over 1928, 3.5% over 1927 and 8.5% over 1926. Thus, with the exception of 1929, 1930 is the largest newsprint consuming year in history.

Book Paper Production

Book paper is used principally in the manufacturing of books, high-grade magazines and advertising booklets and folders. In the first seven months of 1930, production, which closely follows demand, was 4.8% lower than in 1929, but higher than any other year. It was 4.8% more than the four-year average from 1926 through 1929.



HUFFMAN FINDS CHEER ABROAD

O. C. Huffman, president of Continental Can Co., Inc., upon his arrival from Europe on the Majestic, stated business conditions appeared to be good in France and that in England everyone seemed optimistic. He said:

"My visit to England was primarily in connection with the Metal Box & Printing Industries, Ltd., principal can manufacturers of the British Isles, in which company Continental Can has a substantial interest. The English company is having a good year, with packers' can sales more than double those of last year. A similar increase is expected for next year, making the outlook decidedly favorable.

"That company now has under construction a new $500,000 packers' can plant. This plant, when completed, will be equipped with high-speed automatic equipment of latest design. Much enthusiasm is being shown over the benefits expected to be obtained in England from the application of American Can making methods to the English production, and results to date indicate the arrangement to be mutually beneficial.

"Here at home the canning industry is now winding up a satisfactory season. Although tomatoes for canning, the last of the principal vegetable crop, are still coming in, results are expected to be better than condition indicated at the time of the recent drouth."

14 P. C. Gain in Sales Announced

New York, Oct. 8—The F. & W. Grand-Silver Stores Company reports that sales for the month of September amounted to $2,748,[illegible] which represents an increase of 14 per cent over the $2,409,989 reported in the same month a year ago.

For the first nine months of the current year sales of the company amounted to $25,168,802, an increase of 29.3 per cent over the $19,458,[illegible] reported in the corresponding period of last year.

Milwaukee to Have Securities 'Change

Milwaukee, Oct. 8—Board of directors of Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce plan to inaugurate trading in securities on Feb. 2, 1931.

Rules and regulations to govern transactions in securities were adopted by members of the Chamber of Commerce on Sept. 4.

Details as to location of exchange, number of memberships and listings are as yet undecided.

Pneumatic Tool's Output Increased

Franklin, Pa., Oct. 8—Production schedules have been materially increased at local plant of Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. The company has been working on important orders from the Russian government and expects to maintain output at close to capacity throughout the fourth quarter.

Atchison Railway has placed order for 47,500 tons of rails valued at approximately $2,000,000 with Colorado Fuel & Iron Co.

PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were mixed in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Leading issues were active, but as a whole the list was inactive. Changes ranged from fractions to 6 points or more. Gillette dropped over 6 points to a new low for the year.

American Sugar Refining Co. advanced refined sugar price 10 points to 4.45 cents, effective Friday. Revere Sugar Refinery will advance price at the opening Friday from 4.35 cents to 4.45 cents per pound.

After more than 11 years of service Avery D. Andrews has resigned his position as American representative of Royal Dutch Shell group and as chairman of many of their subsidiary American companies, effective Dec. 31, 1930. His present plans are for a considerable period of travel and rest.

In one Boston house the opinion is expressed that a moderate rally should develop to be followed by a quiet and orderly market without any rapid moves in either direction.

This opinion is predicated on Steel and Can which in their judgment will be actively supported at this time. They do not believe that any attempt will be made to stage a sharp rally in these stocks as they think that the large interests are desirous of stabilizing the market at the present level.

Artificial Silk Made From Natural Gas by McGill Savant

New York, Oct. 8—The manufacture of artificial or cellulose silk from natural gas is made possible as the result of a discovery reported by Prof. Yibbert of McGill University. Carbon dioxide and water are the basic materials used in the new process. Carbon dioxide is a by-product of the combustion of natural gas.

NEW YORK STOCKS — Today's Complete Prices and Dividends

SELLING IN WALL STREET IS EASILY ABSORBED

New York, Oct. 8—The stock market withstood the shock of discouraging news from the steel industry fairly well today.

Although leading shares drifted lower, several penetrating still further into new low depths, offerings were light and easily absorbed, and rallying tendencies appeared during the afternoon.

STEEL SETS LOW

The market closed heavy, although a moderate rally in the final transactions reduced extreme losses of 3 to 6 points in pivotal shares, which had carried many to new lows for the year.

U. S. Steel touched 150⅛ within a fraction of the November low and at a new 1930 low. Air Reduction and Allied Chemical recorded extreme losses of 6 points. Trading was dull, however, total sales aggregating 2,200,000 shares.

Shares selling down 2 to 3 included Stone & Webster, American Water Works, Air Reduction and Corn Products.

St. Louis Southwestern dropped 5. Gillette was a soft spot, tumbled 7½ points to a new low at 45⅛, evidently reflecting reports that the proposed acquisition of AutoStrop would require large issuance of senior securities.

The resistance offered by the list as leading shares approached last November's lows yesterday was interpreted in bearish quarters as indicating that further campaigns would be opposed with cash as well as warnings about unethical tactics.

Furthermore, dullness of trading indicated that urgent liquidation had, for the moment, been completed.

STEEL FIGURES POOR

American Iron and Steel Institute's figures on September steel production showed the lowest output for that month since 1924, and clearly indicated that the more active inquiry from consumers had been overestimated. Output was even lower than that of July, although July had been widely accepted as the low month of the year.

It appeared that mills had been able to bill much of the month's requirement from stocks on hand. U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage figures will be published on Friday, and may give a clearer picture of the situation.

In discussions of steel demand, it must be remembered that the mere making of contracts does not definitely promise new business, for these contracts are obligations of the mills rather than the consumers, who may refrain from specifying against them.

"Iron Age" estimated that steel production in the week ended yesterday had dropped 3 per cent to 58 per cent of rated capacity. Its composite price for finished steel fell back to the low of the year. Steel's composite for iron and steel products reached the lowest in 10 years.

WORST SEEN AS PAST

Despite these dark aspects of the situation, many observers continue to believe the worst is over, basing their convictions on course of previous business depressions.

Investment buying on a scale down continued to come into the stock market from important sources, although there was still a decided tendency to place orders slightly under the market, and to refrain from bidding for stocks.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended September 27, at 250,381 cars, were at another new low for the decline, and against the normal trend, but the drop from the previous week was only 2,131 cars, which may indicate a flattening out of the downward curve.

Nash Motors, although earning only 65 cents a share in the third quarter, felt that the outlook was encouraging enough to justify payment of the $1 quarterly dividend. Call money was steady at 2 per cent.

Despite the fact that the government's October cotton report showing an indicated production of 14,486,000 bales was 146,000 bales above its September estimate of 14,340,000, 275,000 in excess of an average of 14,211,000 of 11 private estimates, and 43,000 more than the average guess of 14,443,000 by 88 members of the New York Cotton Exchange, prices at the reopening of the Exchange at 11.15 were 1 to 8 points higher than the 10.55 quotations.

Light Co. Makes Increased Profits

Chicago, Oct. 7—Lindsay Light Co. reports for nine months ended Sept. 30 net of $74,829 after charges and federal taxes, equivalent after dividend requirements on 7 per cent preferred to $1.02 a share (par $10) on 60,000 shares of common, against $56,504, or 67 cents a share in nine months of 1929.

Net for quarter ended Sept. 30 was $19,690 after charges and federal taxes, equal to 24 cents a share on common, against $18,060 or 22 cents a share in third quarter of 1929.

Motor Tourist Travel Increases

Washington, Oct. 8—Motor tourist travel from the United States to New Brunswick, Canada, has been 50 per cent greater this year than in 1929, according to a report from Vice Consul Frederick C. Johnson, Fredericton, N. B., made public by the Department of Commerce.

The normal increase in motor tourist travel to New Brunswick from the United States has been about 25 per cent.

Jersey Central's Plant Near Ready

Jersey Central Power & Light Co., a subsidiary of National Public Service Corporation, and part of the Middle West Utilities System, announces that its new 50,000-kilowatt steam generating station at South Amboy, N. J., is practically completed.

Test runs are now being conducted, and the plant will be officially opened and dedicated on October 31.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

NOT PROVED YET

A. B., Revere—Do you consider Commonwealth & Southern a good stock to buy at current levels?

Ans.—Though Commonwealth & Southern pays dividends of 60 cents a share, the stock is speculative. For twelve months ended July 31, 1930, net income of $30,200,540 was equivalent to 67 cents a share, after preferred dividends. No comparison is available for preceding twelve months. The company, incorporated May, 1929, has an interest in several well-established public utility enterprises.

ELECTRIC BOND EARNINGS UP

Earnings of Electric Bond & Share Co. grew considerably during first six months of this year, with result that report for 12 months ended June 30 disclosed an increase over calendar year 1929.

Larger earnings were due to heavy financing operations of affiliated companies, steady increasing revenue from supervisory services, engineering and construction fees, and dividends and profits from sale of securities.

More than $175,000,000 of new financing and refinancing operations was completed to end of June by companies affiliated with Electric Bond & Share. In the same period, plans for acquisition of United Gas Co. by Electric Power & Light Co. and organization of the former also were undertaken. Several change in miscellaneous investments were responsible primarily for profits from sale of securities.

Electric Bond & Share's gross of $53,263,165 for 12 months ended June 30 was 25 per cent above $42,410,710 for calendar year 1929. Surplus for common after all charges was 29 per cent above the 1929 year at $34,420,902, against $26,717,162.

Lead Price Is Cut to 5.20 Cts. a Pound

American Smelting & Refining Co. has reduced price of lead five points to 5.20 cents a pound.

WLEX Broadcast of Parade Wins Highest Praise

It was a parade within a parade yesterday for station WLEX. Hardly had the broadcast of the American Legion parade begun, when telephone calls and telegrams started pouring in. It was a veritable parade of congratulations for WLEX, the announcers, Newcomb F. Thompson and Arthur S. Roberts, and the Boston Evening American, through which the broadcast was made possible.

Judging from the letters received and which are still pouring in by the score, the broadcast was even more successful than its predecessor, the Tercentenary parade description. Here are some of the letters received by the Boston Evening American:

"Malden, Mass.

"I herewith wish to extend my congratulations to you and all those who in any way were responsible for the American Legion being put on the air through station WLEX. It surely did come over very clearly, and it was a wonderful opportunity to have in the city of Boston a paper like the American. I hope you will be able in the future to put all public celebrations such as we have had this year on the air. EARL LODGE."

VETERAN IS THANKFUL.

A letter from E. L. Goodwin of Newton Center:

"I want to express to you my sincere thanks in making the broadcast of the parade possible and the two announcers especially for their most interesting description. I am a World War veteran who is very ill, making it impossible for me to see it."

From Mrs. Bertha Craft in Watertown:

"Thank you very much for your fine broadcast of the parade today. We did enjoy every bit of it and it was almost as good as being right there. My husband has been sick in bed for some time and he says to tell you that the description given by the broadcasters was as good he could see it."

A letter from Miss Betty Hoffman of Everett, addressed to the announcers:

"Unable to attend the parade, I nevertheless received a very clear word picture through your excellent efforts. Your enthusiasm was contagious and your description both humorous and enlightening. The Boston Evening American did its good deed when it broadcast the eventful program."

FOUR GOVERNORS SPEAK

Particular emphasis is laid on the accomplishment of the announcers, Thompson and Roberts, who broadcast from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m., a stretch of seven hours. It is claimed that no two men had previously announced a single sustained event for a period of seven hours.

Letters and telephone calls also acknowledged the speeches of the dignitaries on the reviewing stand who spoke before the WLEX microphone. The speakers during the course of the broadcast were Governor Tobey, New Hampshire; Governor Case, Rhode Island; Governor Weeks, Vermont; Governor Allen, Massachusetts; Rev. Fr. Catell, the National Legion chaplain; Mayor Curley of Boston, and the national commander, Col. O. L. Bodenhamer. Comrade James Jewell, national commander of the G. A. R., also spoke from the reviewing stand.

Commander Bodenhamer particularly expressed his appreciation over the microphone to every citizen in the country for gratifying support.

Shoe Sales Gain Over a Year Ago

New York, Oct. 8—Melville Shoe Corp. continues to record gains in sales and net over 1929. Sales for nine months totaled $21,907,025, an increase of 13.3 per cent over corresponding period of 1929, although this year's business gives reflection to sales of Traveler Shoe Stores Corp., acquired April 1. Sales in September were $2,186,108, a gain of 9.1 per cent over September, 1929.

Net vailable on common for nine months also registered substantial improvement over 1929, despite the fact that there are 17,085 additional shares of common out in connection with absorption of Traveler.

Power Rates Cut by Gas Subsidiary

Cincinnati, Oct. 8—Union Gas & Electric Co., subsidiary of Columbia Gas & Electric Corp., has been authorized by Ohio Utilities Commission to reduce its power rates for service in Middletown, Franklin and surrounding territory. New rates will be nine-tenths of a cent per kilowatt hour for the first 120 hours and ¼ of a cent per kilowatt hour for all above 120.

Earl Carroll, Miss America, Will Mahoney on Legion Program Tonight

Another colorful "air spectacle" has been prepared for tonight's WLEX gala Legion convention program, which will be heard from the Boston Evening American studio from 6:15 to 7. Theatrical stars and Legion entertainers will join in tonight's broadcast.

From the Shubert Theater Earl Carroll brings with him Will Mahoney, star of the show, "Sketch Book," and Irene Ahlberg, "Miss America." Carroll will provide the only serious moments before the microphone when he gives a short talk on his project to provide American theater-goers with better shows for less money. Miss Ahlberg will be subject to a humorous interview of "topics of world importance," and Will Mahoney will serve up his own dish of banter and patter.

American Legion representatives who will be heard are the Blue Bird Chorus of the girls from Little Rock, Arkansas Post. In addition studio officials promise a number of last minute surprises for tonight's Legion broadcast.

World Beauty

New Drive Planned on Afridi Tribesmen

Simla, India, Oct. 8 (AP)—Further military operations against Afridi tribesmen on the northwest frontier province border are expected in the near future. It is understood a government statement will be issued tomorrow.

Concerning Radio

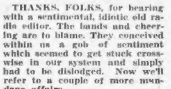
Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

IF YOU, whose eyes are now resting upon these lines, were sitting at a typewriter near the windows of a third-floor room, just around the corner from where the noise of cheering bands playing and all the accompanying sounds of a great parade were dinning your ears, could you, we inquire, give your undivided attention to radio subjects and not slip in just a few lines concerning the stirring events which are taking place this week?

THAT'S RIGHT, you couldn't. If any human being today can come within sight and hearing of the animated thousands who are upon the streets of our beloved old town, and not feel a tugging at his heart and a stirring in his soul and feel the urge to, in some manner, express himself on the subject, then his veins are filled with ice-water and his heart is flint.

RADIO? POOH! Who gives a hang about radio when the hosts of America's finest have rapped upon our door and are seeking our hospitality? What has a broadcast got to do with the odd little lump which keeps coming into our throat and the mistiness to our eyes, as we see those marching thousands, and we note the gray which has in some manner gotten into their hair, and the once boyish figures no longer possess the slenderness of the lads who went "over there."

And yet, neighbors, boys just the same—our boys. A little boisterous, perhaps, some of them; but who cares. We hope that for a long time that spirit of youth will remain with them; we hope that again in the not too distant future our streets, lanes and alleys will resound to the cries of "Welcome, Buddy!"



THANKS, FOLKS, for bearing with a sentimental, idiotic old radio editor. The bands and cheering are to blame. They conceived within us a gob of sentiment which seemed to get stuck crosswise in our system and simply had to be dislodged. Now we'll refer to a couple of more mundane affairs.

IN THE FIRST place be it known that "Jerry" Slattery, known as "Old Man Sunshine," heard not long ago in a program over a coast to coast network has been chosen as master of ceremonies for a new series of Estabrook & Eaton Rockefeller Smokers, which will be heard over WNAC Wednesday evenings at 8 o'clock. The premier program includes Hum and Strum, Jimmy Gallagher, Fred Hoey and others.

Our Sympathy to You, Sir

A READER of the column has written in for a little information; he hails from Quincy, or Wollaston. Part of his letter follows:

Dear Sir: I would like a little information in regards to amateur broadcasting. I live in an apartment-house with one of these pests, who is on the air any time the fancy strikes him. Now I would like to know if he is licensed under those conditions. All radios are put out of commission when he is on the air.

FRANKLY, WE don't know whether or not he has a license, but we do remember when we were a kid that there was a pest called a potato-bug, and that the farmers used to spread arsnic where they could get it. It injured their digestion, or something. Anyway, it isn't a bad idea.

WEATHER OR NOT it is practical to conduct a school by radio we do not know. We cannot quite conceive how it can be, knowing how hard it was to get us to study even when the teacher stood over us with a club. Nevertheless a report informs us that the U. S. School of Music, which sponsors Dr. Spaeth's Music Club, and which now becomes open to the public through the medium of a weekly broadcast, has a charter membership of more than 600,000 men and women.

RADIO Personalities

"Old Sweet Tooth" is the newest nickname of HENRY BURBIG. But don't bother remembering it for the Senor gets a new one each each week. . . . BERT LOWN has added a trio to his orchestra. . . When mentioning NBC say it this way: NATional Broadcasting Company. . . The new Vatican station which is almost ready for operation will have a special studio in the Pope's apartment. . . GEORGE HICKS is badly peeved because he wasn't named to aid McNamee during the World Series. . . While on the subject we might mention that Graham had a tough time of it in St. Louis. The fans felt that he was pro-Athletics and let him know by means of jeers that they didn't like it.. . . FRANK SINGISER, NBC announcer recently had to imitate the roar of a lion during a broadcast, and so natural was the roar that Frank had to go on a vacation for throat recuperation. . . ELIENA KAZANOVA plays her Around the Samovar violin solos on an instrument valued at $6000. . . HARRY SALTER'S toughest job is keeping the "Real Folks" orchestra from playing in tune.

chauffeur. The car lunged forward and shot ahead of the other two.

Ray nodded. Goldie darted a glance behind.

"Not too fast now, boy," he warned. "Let these other cars catch up." The machine slowed down. They were clipping along at forty-five.

Directly in front at the intersection of Broad st. the traffic lights blocked them. A policeman stood in their path, his hand upraised. Ray never swerved his car, but kept the center of the street and the cop jumped to save himself. There was a thud on the rear pane of the sedan. The glass was shatter-proof and bullet-proof. Goldie felt the need of a smoke and took a cigarette from his case.

Annie Smokes

They reached the boulevard, dodging cars, passing red lights and policemen. There were four of Goldie's cars behind him now and they formed a fast-moving procession. Behind, Goldie could hear the relentless siren of the Chief's roadster.

"He don't know what he's gettin' into,"-muttered Goldie. Then as they turned into the wide boulevard Goldie instructed:

"Cut this next corner on two and keep straight."

The chauffeur speeded up until the next corner. He fairly skidded around it, and as they turned the other four cars whizzed by. They had gone several blocks when Goldie saw the green lights of the police car turn into the street. He said nothing, but felt with both hands beneath his coat.

Ray was knocking off 50 now. The police car kept faster and gradually began to gain on them, and still Goldie gave no instructions to his chauffeur. After about 15 blocks the car was almost alongside. Goldie had turned down the window in the door.

"Hit it!" called Goldie.

He drew back his arm and let fly. In a second his car was a full block ahead of the other and in a few moments the chief's car had been left far behind. Then the chauffeur began a series of turns and finally they were in the country, speeding along at 70.

The window of the car still was open and the fresh night air breezed in. Goldie inhaled deeply.

Goldie switched on a little light in front of him and pushed back a panel. He began to dial the radio. Here was music from the Dresden Hotel. Now he had a night club. Then he got what he wanted.

"Municipal broadcasting station, RYNC," came through the speaker, concealed in the top of the car.—"The police have just captured one of the gangsters who tonight staged the daring raid on Central Detail. He refused to give his name. The homicide squad is in pursuit of four cars. One was wrecked and abandoned three blocks from the station. The gangsters escaped. Two of them are believed to have been badly wounded. All hospitals have been warned to watch for them. The chief of police has personally taken charge of the roundup of these desperadoes who have dared to storm the Central Station itself, as a climax to an unprecedented . . ."

"Okay, Babes."

He turned on a jazz band. As the strident strains of the split-beat syncope came through, Polack Annie, a clutch in her voice, sank back and let go a sigh that was almost a sob:

"Gee, the Kid was a hot dancer."

Goldie leaned forward, opened his mouth, then said nothing for a moment. Half a minute later, to himself, he pondered:

"Who could it be them d——n dumb cops nabbed?"

THURSDAY IS

Accessory Fashion Day

"What's in Fashion?" tomorrow will feature fashions in accessories and will give directions for the correct assembling of a fall and winter wardrobe.

"Each article in a person's wardrobe may be fashion-right, but, unless all costume units agree in color and type, the costume whole is a failure," says Amos Parrish.

Read this important release of "What's in Fashion?" which gives fashion's definite rules for ensembling costumes for all hours of the day.

TINY GOLFERS CONTEST

The contest for course champs in the Boston Evening American Miniature Golf tournament is on at all of the 18 selected courses.

Trophies will be awarded to the woman and man making the lowest score on their favorite course. Rules of the contest make it impossible to be the champ on more than one course.

Trophies will be awarded by the course managers to those making the lowest scores from 10 o'clock last Saturday until Saturday night of this week at 10 p. m.

Prize winners for the grand roll off in Boston Garden were as follows: First grand prize for women, a Scott fur coat, was won by Flora Kenyon, 11 Popular st., Roslindale, who scored 52. Harold Barlow, 1750 Commonwealth ave., won the Majestic radio set with a score of 43. R. H. Skinner, 130 Beacon st., Chestnut Hill, won the English lounging chair with a score of 46.

Massachusetts Endorses

Supports Federal Department of Education

Massachusetts, with the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor holding their annual conventions here this week, has long been a leader in the field of Education. Our school system is one of the best in the Union. Our educational standards are higher than most of the States maintain.

Nevertheless, the educational authorities here are among the strongest endorsers of the proposal to establish a Federal Department of Education.

Here is what State Commissioner of Education Payson Smith says in support of the Capper-Robsion Bill to put Education on an equality with Agriculture, Commerce and Labor.

"It is because of the experience of the educational forces of the country in trying to secure the service which is desired from a Bureau of Education that many of us, including myself, are converts to the proposition of a Federal Department of Education.

"I have become persuaded that the thing that we desire to have done cannot be accomplished to the degree that we desire if it remains the responsibility of a Bureau that is within a department that has a great many other interests, and that is under the direction of a secretary who, of course, must consider the various interests, some of which on occasion he may very properly feel it is his duty to place before the Board of Education.

"A Federal Department will tender a great service to the States by providing adequate research facilities. In no American State has there been established under public auspices a research agency with adequate appropriations. There is little likelihood that the Legislatures of the States—or indeed a very considerable minority of them—will at any time in the future establish such agencies. If they were to do so, there would be much waste of money, since in the field of Education most of the problems to be studied are not restricted by State lines."

State and local school officials throughout the country are demanding the type of research and information service that only a Federal Department of Education can render.

They know that the control of Education lies with the sovereign States. They are strongly opposed to any Federal interference with State control of Education.

But State and local school officials know also that the promotion of Education is just as much the function of the Federal Government as is the promotion of agriculture, commerce and labor.

And American Education will never be effectively promoted by the Federal Government until a Secretary of Education takes his seat in the President's Cabinet by the side of the Secretaries of Agriculture, Commerce and Labor.

Wasn't It Glorious?

The Great Legion Parade

Nearly eighty thousand young Americans on parade, and an admiring throng of 2,000,000 people.

Wasn't it glorious?

From the time that George Washington made the first Presidential trip here, Boston has been a natural mecca for magnificent celebrations.

President Grant's peace jubilee, the extraordinary reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic in the '80's, the reception of Admiral Dewey and President Wilson's return from the dissensions of Versailles—all of those, with others, are written in the gold letters of Boston's history.

To Governor Allen, Mayor Curley, Commander Bodenhamer, Carroll Swan, Paul Hines and to all others responsible for the arrangements the compliments of the people will be tendered without stint.

Boston has abundant reason to be proud and to be happy.

Coolidge's Few Words

Brief But Full of Meaning

The ex-President crowded a great deal into a few words.

"You paid your debt to Lafayette," he said, "but you still owe a debt to yourself and the United States."

Memory can readily supply the impulse which prompted the first half of that pungent sentence.

From the day he stepped his foot into the White House, the international banking gang bore down on him with their demands for cancellation of the war debts. When their pleadings failed they sniped at him with insidious propaganda.

He warned them it ill became any American to sit at a foreign banquet table and discharge the debts with flowery, fawning speeches. Those debts belonged to all the American people, not to the diluted Americans seeking foreign bangles to wear like peacocks.

"If the United States has any money to give away, it should be to Americans, not to foreigners."

Surely the debt was paid in full to Lafayette. Americans saved them from defeat abroad. If not gratitude, at least self-respect should have urged them to pay, eagerly, not hesitatingly; fully, not grudgingly. They did neither.

Now, the Auto Gouge

If you own an automobile you probably are now receiving the excise tax bill on it from the city or town in which you live.

You could operate your car for ten months before you are called upon to meet this obligation to the city or town, which is the people who constitute our government.

BUT you cannot drive that car one foot on the highways you built and paid for until you FIRST have paid your liability insurance tax to a private insurance corporation.

Everywhere you turn you find this same tender solicitude for these corporations which are now taking $20,000,000 a year in insurance taxes from the automobile owners and which will soak them an additional million dollars in the rates approved for 1931.

This insurance system is full to the brim with inconsistencies, penalties and indefensible exactions. It can never be right or worthy until it is completely overhauled by the next Legislature.

HIS OWN SHADOW

By NELSON HARDING

The sun comes up as usual
The cloud banks drift away;
There isn't anywhere a real
Good reason for dismay.

Then why do pessimists ignore
A prospect bright and fair,
And look behind them tearfully
At their own shadows there?

Listen, World!—Farming

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Is Something Wrong With Si?

ALL THIS talk about farm relief. Bad times in the country districts . . . heck to pay in Washington. Why? Is it because dirt's cursed, climate contrary and trading crooked? Or is there possibly something amiss with Si himself?

Now, mind you, I've nothing against farmers, per se. I'm one myself and 100 per cent strong for the racket. Yet if you nose around you can't help noticing things and—well, here are some facts. Judge for yourself.

Elsie Robinson

I'm working 400 acres of the prettiest dirt you'd want to find. Fine water. Perfect climate. A hunk of heaven—with similar hunks all around for a hundred miles. You couldn't locate a nicer ranching district. Yet it's the same old story. Dilapidated buildings. Starving cattle and skimp crops. Banks foreclosing. Young, husky men loafing around, discouraged and disgusted. Riding past the broken fences, surveying the weed-grown orchards, I've wondered.

* * *

"No market—what's the use of working?" they answered. Was that really the reason?

The other day I rode into the busy little town that's the center of our district. Things looked prosperous enough. Radios blaring under the awnings, cars parked along the curb. Sun-tanned young bucks striding around in trick Bietzens. Made me think of my own youngsters, out on the ranch. Six of the finest. Born ranchers, but with no more notion of modern methods than a bunch of gophers. So I decided I'd take back an armful of farm magazines—start reading up. Should be easy enough to get them, with three drug stores to choose from.

* * *

Easy? In ten minutes I learned plenty. Buy a farm magazine in a ranching community? Try and do it! Magazines enough—racks piled high with them—but what about? Love stories, detectives stories, wild West romances, confessions—but nary a page on cattle or grain.

"It's no use carrying them—we wouldn't have a call for one in a year," smiled the three proprietors.

"But how about the men? Surely the farmers, themselves, don't read this stuff?"

* * *

"Yes, they do. Just as crazy about it as the women. And you can't blame them. It's sort of a relaxation——"

Relaxation? From what? From the grind of futile drudgery? But what makes it futile and what makes it drudgery? The cussedness of climate, the crookedness of markets? Or their own ignorance and indifference and lack of enthusiasm? Reading love confessions and wild West heart throbs while the wheat dwindles in the sour soil of the south pasture, while their fruit trees die of blight, because they try to run their farms by methods which their grandiads used?

Could a business man keep his trade if he showed no more interest than that? Could an editor run his paper if he did no more studying than that? Judge for yourself.

H. G. Wells Writes

New Species of Sheep Discovered

NOW WE must tackle an important complication. Sometimes the genes themselves may undergo alteration.

In the year 1791 a Massachusetts sheep farmer of the name of Seth Wright was greatly surprised when one of his ewes bore a lamb with the build of a pekinese, having a long back and short, bowed legs. Nothing like had ever ever appeared in his flock before.

Now it happened that he was sorely perplexed because his sheep used to roam into other people's fields; the fences of Massachusetts, it seems, were low in those days.

So he noted with pleasure that the new arrival was a mate. He killed his old ram and reared and bred altogether from the news and he found the new shape to Mendeliz, for thereafter his sheep were always either completely Ancon (as the new shape was called) or completely ordinary.

By picking those of the short-legged type he got in a few years a very considerable flock of animals which were unable to jump over fences—and the variety spread throughout Massachusetts. It was subsequently displaced by the Merino.

H. G. Wells

The animals of this strain threw best at 20 degrees C., and die if the temperature goes above 26 degrees or below 11 degrees. After 14 years, a mutation arose which adapted its possessors to different conditions of temperature.

The young of this new type die if kept in the standard temperature conditions. The mutant strain does best at 27 degrees Centigrade, dies at 20 degrees, and will tolerate 32 degrees.

Apart from this altered reaction to heat and cold, no other difference could be found between the two strains. Here we have an excellent example of the germ-plasm throwing up a new type which might be of the greatest service to the species in helping it to spread to warmer climates.

The Florida velvet bean could only be grown in Florida and the Gulf States. Suddenly a variety appeared which would flower and set seed in less specialized weather and which could therefore be profitably planted over the whole cotton belt of the United States.

A variety of tobacco appeared which would not flower in the northern U. S. A. (where its parent plants had successfully existed), but which could be made to flower and seed by keeping it under artificial illumination which corresponded in length of day and night with a sub-tropical summer. Suddenly at a bound the strain had fitted itself for an entirely new climate.

Here we have four examples of mutations. A stock has bred more or less true for generations; suddenly something happens in its chromosomes, some innovating change, and an individual with an entirely new feature, a "sport" appears.

What Do You Know?

BOSTON'S ORIGINAL KNOWLEDGE TEST

1. Who created Chicago's Hull House?
2. What is the great Roman highway began before Christ was born?
3. In "Gulliver's Travels," what is the name of the country where everything is on an enormous scale?
4. Where is a free port?
5. What is the horizon?

Fill each blank:

6. Capt. Dieudonne ——— has flown without stop to New York from Paris.
7. Charles Evans ——— is Chief Justice of the U. S.
8. General John J. ——— is seventy years old.
9. Albert ——— is the expounder of relativity.
10. The Queen of the Belgians is Queen ———.

Match correctly:

11. replace	temperament
12. tempt	supersede
13. brag	agreeable
14. disposition	boast

They Made Him Famous

He USED Them

OFFICER SCHALKMAN'S "EAGLE" EYES

This New York cop, who might have been merely one of 19,000 pavement pounders, is known from coast to coast for his "uncanny" ability to spot stolen autos and return them to owners.

Officer Schalkman's eyes, though important, are nevertheless the same as any pair of normal eyes. He can see no farther than thousands of patrolmen that you never heard of.

He used to be posted at Manhattan Bridge, and having spare time, he began to memorize stolen car numbers.

He wrote them down on slips of paper, put the slips in his hat, kept them on his mind.

"The other cops laughed at me," says Schalkman. They thought he was a fool for taking a little extra trouble, doing a little more work than was needed to "get by."

Schalkman gave MORE SERVICE than he was paid to give. That was the only difference between him and the others.

You hear much about Schalkman today, in the United States and in foreign lands, and nothing whatever of the gentlemen who laughed at him.

New York Day by Day

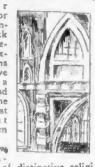
The "Rockefeller Cathedral," So Called

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—"The Rockefeller Cathedral," as megaphonists of the yap wagon call it, is completed. Gracing a slight rise on upper Riverside Drive, near Grant's Tomb, its soft grey facade shoots up into the most restful spire in town, a spire comparable to any of Wren's in London.

In my opinion it is the only religious edifice outside of St. John's and St. Patrick's in New York that has the sublimity and warmth of old world cathedrals such as St. Gudule or Rheims. The entrance is a replica of the Chartres cathedral and the whole effect is a Gothic masterpiece.

The official name is Riverside Baptist church and it was built by the elder Rockefeller for Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick and his congregation. The exact instructions are said to have been: "Erect a fine church and send me the bill." The cost is estimated at from two to ten millions.



The new church completes a triad of distinctive religious structures the past year—the other two in the trinity being the Temple Emmanu-el and the Church of the Heavenly Rest on upper Fifth Avenue. The executive offices of the Drive church will be in the tower.

And an interesting yarn is spun of the tower furnishings. Everything had been installed. The elder John D., on his way to Tarrytown one evening stopped in to look things over. He clucked his tongue and shook his head. Next morning workmen descended and removed everything in waiting vans.

* * *

Mr. Rockefeller had decided it was not nearly fine enough for such a magnificent exterior and that gives a general idea of the lavish manner in which everything has been done. The Rockefellers—father and son—have shown unusual personal interest in every detail of the construction work.

The senior Rockefeller visited it several times a month, strolled among the workmen to chat, ask questions and encouraged them. He has an expert knowledge of stonemasonry. The son was a daily visitor. This scrupulous attention doubtless contributed much toward the marvelous result.

* * *

But the biggest Rockefeller local improvement is, of course, the Radio City struggling for shape in heart of town. Progress at present is only shown in vacant stores across from St. Patrick's and temporary parking spaces and runt golf courses where buildings once stood. The section will have a "hard times" look for many buildings are untenanted waiting destruction. Some received big bonuses and moved out immediately.

* * *

I recently heard a simile attributed to the Elder Rockefeller, which is as good as I ever heard. He spoke of something being as "plaintive as a lost sheep's baa."

* * *

There are no fuss and feathers about young John D. He walks up the avenue window-shopping leisurely every evening he is in town to his home around the corner in West 54th street. Many in his neighborhood do not recognize him. His home is not particularly pretentious. Around his doorway or lobby nearby is always two guardsmen in plain clothes. Mr. Rockefeller often stops to talk to a venerable street sweeper on his block. He is seldom seen leaving his home after dinner.

* * *

Those who know say John D. Jr. is the most dutiful of sons. He phones his father wherever he may be daily. He visits the family home at Tarrytown twice a week and father and son take long walks together about the Pocantico Hills estate.

* * *

Nor do I understand what it is about me that attracts cocoons.

Waiting in a theater lobby for my wife, a haughty gentleman stepped up and said something like this: "Tell me, peasant, what theater is this?" I replied it was the Mansfield. He was thoughtful a moment, shook his head sadly and exclaimed: "What is to become of us?" And walked slowly away counting off his fingers like a priest piously telling his beads.

"You may not know it," telegraphs Miss D., New Orleans, "but you are wonderful!"
